Dear Parents,

I hope you are well. I am writing in regard to international travel and our upcoming March Break.

At The Study we fully support the Government's directive to avoid all non-essential travel between now and April 30th. All Study teachers and staff have agreed to respect this directive. I am sincerely hoping that every member of The Study community will do the same, particularly in light of the concerns around these new variants of COVID-19. I would therefore ask that you advise me, in writing, if anyone in your family will be travelling outside of Canada during this time.

Important reminder: Any student who resides with an individual who has traveled internationally, is to stay home for the quarantine period. Any student who travels internationally must respect the quarantine period as per the public health authority protocol.

I appreciate the many messages of gratitude I receive on a daily basis for the increased effort your daughter's teachers are exhibiting each day as they deliver both online and in-school instruction, simultaneously. This is no easy task. Please, let's remain committed to each other so as to ensure everyone in the community stays safe and healthy for the balance of the year.

Once again, thank you for your ongoing support of all in The Study community.

Yours truly,

Kim McInnes
Head of School
