Aysgarth School

Aysgarth School is near Bedale, North Yorkshire, and is one of the leading Prep schools in the country, where 'boys can be boys'. Aysgarth sends more boys to selective schools such as Eton and Harrow than any other school in the north of England, as well as to senior schools nearby. It is a northern school with a national focus; the school is full boarding focused, with around 90% of boys boarding. Its academic performance is excellent and this is matched by success in sporting, musical, dramatic and artistic departments. The activities programme is vast and the boys work hard and have fun.

Boarding school teachers work with the children in and out of the classroom, share meals with them and often live on site. There is much truth in the old adage that 'one wins the battle outside of the classroom' and being able to congratulate a boy on his sporting performance on Saturday or on his singing in the Chapel on Sunday, helps develop his self-confidence.
