

Launch Floyd Bennett Field Campus

A sustainable and antiracist school

Our vision: This will be their field to build a better world

The next generation will be tackling climate change, food injustice, and systemic racism. Sitting in the classroom won't be enough to prepare tomorrow's leaders. That's why we're developing a state-of-the-art K-12 campus on Floyd Bennett Field. It will be the first school in our city intentionally designed to advance sustainability and racial equity.

The campus: A unique and innovative institution

In collaboration with the National Park Service and our other lead partners, we plan to transform Floyd Bennett Field's historic grounds and airplane hangers into world-class learning environments for 1,200 Central Brooklyn students. Our visionary students—who have been systematically excluded from the opportunities that lead to green jobs and most affected by environmental racism in our city—will engage with the complex challenges facing their communities and planet.

Students will...

- Run a three-acre farm
- Become environmental stewards
- Build STEAM skills
- Collaborate and work as a team
- Grow into leaders for sustainability and equity

Our partners

- National Park Service
- The Campaign Against Hunger
- Billion Oyster Project
- Jamaica Bay-Rockaway Parks Conservancy
- NYC Outward Bound Schools

We need you

This is the model for what sustainable and racially equitable education can look like. Our plan is to break ground on Phase I in 2021 so we can begin instruction in 2022. We need you to make this a reality. Contact Alexis Rubin, Director of External Affairs at Launch Charter School, at (718) 604-6910 or arubin@launchschool.org for funding and partnership opportunities.

About Launch Charter School

Our mission is to develop in students the skills and the character to disrupt inequities in society and build a better world. We are an NYC Outward Bound School and implement the EL Education model, which supports students in achieving more than they thought possible.

LAUNCH

A NYC Outward Bound School

1580 Dean St, Brooklyn, NY 11213 • LaunchSchool.org