THE POLICY

The Salt Lake City School District Board of Education complies with all applicable laws and rules governing the selection and provision of textbooks, and other instructional materials and supplies used in schools, including those related to equivalence and content. The board also recognizes the right of parents to review and comment on the curriculum and instructional materials selected for use in the district.

In promoting inclusion and awareness around multicultural education and taking a culturally responsive approach to teaching, the district also reviews all new instructional materials with a lens informed by multicultural education and culturally responsive pedagogy. The district is committed to providing an increasingly diverse curriculum and resources by requiring the review of underrepresented voices and inclusion of diverse perspectives in all new materials.

The purpose of this policy is to ensure that textbooks and other instructional materials, including library and media materials, are selected to support the Utah Core Standards, State of Utah Comprehensive Accountability System (UCAS) requirements, and the learning needs of all district students.

The district has set forth its specific processes for implementing this board policy through the accompanying administrative procedures.
