THE POLICY

The Salt Lake City School District Board of Education will provide educational planning through a college and career readiness school counseling program which involves students, parents, and educators. Through this program, school counselors will use a comprehensive, systemic approach to inspire all students to pursue, and prepare them for, post-secondary educational opportunities through individual student planning, career pathways, and career literacy.

The purpose of this policy is to support the use of Utah's College and Career Readiness School Counseling Program Model (CCRSC Program) which includes four components: plan for college and career readiness, collaborative classroom instruction, systemic support to dropout prevention with social emotional supports, and program administration. This framework is student-centered, data driven, counselor-implemented and systemic in nature so that students complete high school with the social capital necessary to participate fully in a global society.

All schools will support the development and implementation of the CCRSC Program and establish any committees necessary to meet state requirements. Assistance and information will be provided to all schools by the career and technical education and student services departments. A district level work-based learning committee will also monitor and support work-based learning.

The district has set forth its specific processes for implementing this board policy through the accompanying administrative procedures.
