TAGGING

- I. Tagger crews primarily do graffiti and are not part of a street gang, though some do carry weapons. They usually consist of no more than three individuals who are more interested in street art than violent criminal activities. Taggers are the predominant source of graffiti within Salt Lake County. They typically will not cross out the graffiti of other tagging crews or street gangs. "Battles" or wars, waged between groups of taggers, can create thousands of dollars worth of damage in a single night as tagging crews compete to put up the most graffiti.

- A. Taggers should not be confronted. If possible, obtain information (i.e. clothing, car description, license plate number, etc.) on the culprits unobtrusively and pass it on to law enforcement.
- B. Parents of taggers may find sketch books containing practice art, various types of aerosol spray paint cans, surgical gloves, loose spray can tips, larger markers, stickers, or photographs and video of graffiti. Youth involved in tagging may have paint or marker on their hands, under their fingernails, or on their clothes.

GRAFFITI

- II. Graffiti is used by gangs to claim territory, to make threats, and to challenge rival gangs. When gang members write graffiti in a neighborhood, they are making a statement that the neighborhood belongs to them, to show their loyalty to a gang, or to enhance the reputation of the gang.
 - A. Graffiti falls into two categories:
 - 1. Graffiti that contains gang names reflects rivalries between gangs (TCG, SUR, CHI, AVES, OLG, VLT, LLC, KTB, or QVO); and
 - 2. Graffiti may contain numbers (i.e. 13, 14, 17, 33, 18, or 38) or threats (i.e. CK-Crip Killer, BK, DK, AK, QK, or 187-a threat to kill).
 - B. Parents of taggers may find sketch books containing practice art, various types of aerosol spray paint cans, surgical gloves, loose spray can tips, larger markers, stickers, or photographs and video of graffiti. Youth involved in tagging may have paint or marker on their hands, under their fingernails, or on their clothes.
