

Allison Baucom

I am currently a 3rd year veterinary student at N.C. State University College of Veterinary Medicine. After graduating from West, I attended Catawba College to earn my Bachelor's of Science degree in Biology with a minor in Chemistry. I also played on the women's soccer team all four years and was a member of the cheerleading team for two years. From the beginning of college, I knew I wanted to be a Veterinarian. I worked hard to maintain a high GPA, be a good team member to both athletic teams, and obtain practice hours at a local veterinary clinic. My senior year at Catawba I applied to eight veterinary schools all over the country and was accepted to four. N.C. State had always been the goal, so I was ecstatic! I am currently in my third year at N.C. State, which is the final portion of our curriculum in the classroom. Starting in May I will move on to the clinical portion of my education where I will be working as a rotating student doctor on real clinical cases in many concentrations including dermatology, ophthalmology, internal medicine, cardiology, emergency, and neurology. I will be focusing on small animal medicine (dogs and cats), but I have a deeper interest in dermatology and nutrition. In May of 2020, I will graduate as a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine and plan to start a career working at a small animal private practice in North Carolina.
