* Learning is going to happen in your life, whether you seek it out or not. College is a great way to embrace learning. BY THE TIME YOU GRADUATE FROM HIGH SCHOOL, you're a school expert. It's likely that you already balance homework with a part-time job, and you somehow fit a social life (or scroll through Instagram) in between.

Whether school was a struggle or a breeze, it doesn't matter. All students are different. Learning what doesn't work for you is just as important as learning what does. Every experience can help prepare you for the choices ahead.

EXPLORE YOUR OPTIONS, ASK QUESTIONS, & TRUST YOUR GUT.

Choosing a university is all about finding the best fit for you. Maybe you learn best through watching an expert or through reading a textbook. Maybe you prefer to get in and get your hands dirty. It's time to explore your options, ask questions, and trust your gut.

THERE'S NO

DO LEARNING.

Christian will graduate this spring, after taking a semester off of school to bike 2,300 miles across Japan. 4. Joseph's advice to high school students: "Don't listen to those telling you that you can't."

She is a first-generation college student. 7. Colton is a Digital Cinema major, and he works making videos he's passionate about. 8. As an electrician's apprentice, Garrett identifies with being a hands-on learner.

Nasty Cat*

Double-~~Dog~~-
Dare you to call
801-863-1941

This is a real number that you can call to hear a message.
When was the last time you made an actual phone call?

* Reason #593 that the wolverine is the greatest school mascot... sometimes the wolverine is called a nasty cat.

Education is a cost you can afford.

College costs money, but it also costs time and effort. No matter the cost, higher education opens doors in every direction. UVU's tuition rates are below the nationwide average. With our affordable programs, what doors could you open?

What your ramen preference says about you.*

1. TOP RAMEN: The classic student. You're practical and a little (sometimes a lot) salty. Studying in your dorm room will allow you to take "breaks" to binge-watch Netflix. You'll probably spend a lot of time thinking about that paper you've been meaning to finish.
2. CUP OF NOODLES: The overachieving student. You're a planner, and you lean toward convenience. If there's a big test in the morning, you'll have an alarm set to remind you to get to bed early. You're likely to study in the library with your fellow like-minded academics.
3. SNAPCHAT RAMEN RECIPE: (Made famous by Kylie Jenner.) The social student. You're a little bit fancy, and you don't necessarily follow the crowd. You're more likely to go out with friends the night before a big test than to study. Somehow you manage to keep that GPA afloat.
4. RAMEN: The conscientious student. You've got standards and would pull an all-nighter to prepare for a test, if needed. People will find you studying in a coffee shop or local independent bookstore. You value culture and diversity, which (along with some caffeine) helps you to stay woke.

* Ramen doesn't actually determine who you are. Most students are a combination of these traits and would eat any noodles given to them.

Every wolverine is unique.

Did you know that wolverines have unique patterns of cream fur on their face, throat, and chest? Much like human fingerprints, no two patterns are the same.

COME AS YOU

This is an exciting time. Your future is wide open. As you consider the paths you can take after high school, don't forget that there's a place for you here.
