

WHY YOU SHOULD THINK ABOUT JOINING

SPELL BOWL

Your parents are always nagging you to have “extra-curricular” activities on your transcript so that you can get into a good college with plenty of scholarship money. Which after school activity is right for you? This is here to convince you of the benefits of the Spell Bowl team.

WHAT IS SPELL BOWL?

You pretty much know . . . it's spelling. The good news is that you do not have to stand up and spell in front of people like you see on TV. You simply sit at a desk, listen to a guy say 10 words, and you spell them to the best of your ability. You are then done and can listen to your teammates spell some words while you finish up your math homework.

We ask that you think about maybe trying out for the team next year. Below are some reasons why Spell Bowl may be the activity for you.

1. Looks sweet on a transcript! You need that one extra thing to throw on that college transcript. Being on an academic team has got to look good.
2. I'm not looking for people to memorize the dictionary. But, I am looking for some great students to help us get to State and perform well. We are not having practices every day. I'm thinking that we have some meetings during zero period on one day a week. I give you the list of words, we take a few practice tries, we laugh, good times.
3. Looking at the schedule there are only three meets (if we make state) Simply put, this would not be a lot of time taken away from you.
4. You get to meet new people. Just as in any sport, club, or competition you get to meet others who enjoy the same pursuits as you. Come on out and meet some new people. Maybe you have some friends you want to convince to join (wink, wink).
5. We are all about fun. We are laid back. I just want to have a few laughs and maybe crush some other students on the way.

Stop by Mr. Lambersie's room, C-120 and pick up some info.