CONVERSATIONS WORTH HAVING

CURIOSITY

Harnessing the urge to know more.

When you're curious about something, you process it deeply rather than superficially. As a result, you more readily remember what you learn. In general, people who are more curious are happier and better liked.

MEET DR. FRED BURTON

Dr. Burton has spent 44 years as an educator, including 13 years as principal of Wickliffe Progressive Elementary School in Upper Arlington. He is currently an associate professor at Ashland University and a long-time faculty member at Harvard's Project Zero Classroom summer institute. He regularly works with teachers and parents to promote a "culture of thinking" in order to help students think more deeply. His favorite role is that of a proud grandparent who is rediscovering the value and wonder of curiosity and play each day.
