STUDENT’S RESPONSIBLE USE OF TECHNOLOGY AGREEMENT

The Glendale-River Hills School District's official Student’s Responsible Use Agreement (School Board Policy JNDB-AR) can be found on the district's web site at: www.glendale.k12.wi.us/l_Instruction.aspx

In common language, this is what the policy means and what students need to understand:

Using technology in the Glendale-River Hills School District is like using other school-provided resources: you need to take care of your "stuff;" you need to be responsible and thoughtful; you need to plan ahead and be organized; you should always respect the property and privacy of others.

As more of our daily work involves the use of computers and other digital tools, we all need to learn how to use and share these resources effectively and responsibly. Using a "common sense" approach still works. If a particular action seems wrong or questionable, reconsidering that action is a wise choice. Asking teachers and staff members for advice is always a good idea.

The school district provides many valuable resources for teaching and learning. Through the use of computers, software applications, interactive classroom technology and the internet, there are many opportunities for you to learn, create and work. In addition to providing these tools for students and staff members, the school district expects everyone to use these tools wisely and responsibly. Doing so will maximize their availability and make for a more interesting and productive learning environment!

Choosing not to follow this policy will result in loss of privileges, which may include partial or complete loss of access to technology-specific resources.

We have read the Student Acceptable Technology Use Policy and understand that my child has agreed to follow its rules/guidelines. I understand that inappropriate use may result in loss of access privileges and other disciplinary measures as outlined in the school policy.
