Job description

Hands-on Care Needed For My Mother In Sparrow Bush

About who needs care: C is a 71-year-old woman who suffers from Progressive Supranuclear Palsy (PSP) a disease that is sometimes called Parkinson's Evil Twin. She needs hands-on support for all movements as the condition leaves her without balance. Despite the lack of balance she tries to stay active with Tai Chi and Dance classes but needs constant support as she is a high fall risk. She prefers to be left alone for quiet time most of the day when she is not doing her classes and exercise. She has a very specific meal regimen that involved blending food and including supplements as she cannot eat solid food. Her 3 adult children (and 3 grandchildren) live with her but need additional support taking care of her.

About the care needs: An ideal caregiver needs to be strong enough to support her and keep her from falling every time she is moving. A quiet person who doesn't talk a lot is ideal as she easily gets overwhelmed with trying to maintain a conversation. A music lover would be a good fit. The most important thing is that the person is strong and agile enough to keep her from falling.

Services needed include: meal preparation, errands / shopping, light housekeeping, feeding, bathing / dressing, and mobility
