Town of Vernon Hosts Virtual Public Workshop on Plan of Conservation & Development

(VERNON, Connecticut) – The Town of Vernon is hosting its second virtual public workshop to seek comments from the public for its once a decade update of a key planning document.

The workshop is scheduled for 7 p.m. April 29th, 2021 and will be conducted via Zoom.

The Planning & Zoning Commission began work to update the Plan of Conservation & Development during the fall and winter and is now offering a public workshop to review the progress to date.

“This session will focus on the Future Land Use Map, as well as the draft Goals and Objectives,” said George McGregor, Vernon’s Town Planner. “Both elements are designed to help steer development and conservation efforts for the next 10 years. A key step is hearing from residents, business owners and property owners.”

The workshop is the latest step in an ongoing effort to engage town residents in the process of updating the plan. The Planning & Zoning Commission previously conducted an online survey of residents, business owners and property owners that generated more than 1,000 responses for the Commission to consider. The initial public workshop took place in January.

The Plan of Conservation and Development is a document that provides a long-term vision for a community and guides land use boards as they make decisions about growth, development, conservation and capital improvements during the coming decade. Cities and towns across Connecticut update the documents every 10 years.
