UPDATE FROM THE PRINCIPALS: CMS and BMS are both open!

Earlier this week, in response to current events here at home and globally, one of our teachers shared a comment made by one of our students who said, "We're tired of being part of history," noting that this remark was made prior to the events in our Nation's capital this week. Here at our middle schools, our steadfast goal is clear: To provide our students, your children, with a sense of normalcy and safety, time with their friends, peers and teachers, and firm footing in daily learning routines so they can quiet their minds from the suffering, confusion, and sadness. Helping us toward this goal was the successful reopening of CMS this week. The Coleytown school community enjoyed a positive and high-energy grand opening to the excitement and delight of students, staff and parents. Likewise, changes were made at BMS to make the best use of newly available spaces in the building. We are planning and preparing for more in-school time for students when health and safety conditions allow; please continue to tune into the Board of Education meetings, and review the PTA Blasts and newsletters to stay apprised of developments pertaining to the middle school operational models.
