Signature Programs

Oxbridge Academy's Signature Programs ignite every student's inner passion, strengthen individual skills, and provide valuable learning experiences to stimulate creative thinking and uniquely prepare each student for college and beyond. The students of the Class of 2022 have had the opportunity to participate in the following Signature Programs:

Artificial Intelligence Students are first introduced to the Python programming language so that they can explore and experience what it means to learn through the intersection of computer science and mathematics. Students are asked to identify what parallels exist between human learning and the complex task of obtaining the same results from a machine.

Aviation Students participate in hands on activities designed by AOPA (Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association) and their instructors to explore the physics and science of flying, ground school activities while also learning to fly in the full motion Redbird MCX Flight Simulator and two other desk top Redbird simulators. Over an extended possible four-year program, students prepare to enter the world of aviation or engineering or any career in the field. Students participating in this curriculum program earn an elective credit and grade. Since 2014 many former aviation program students have earned their pilot's licenses and have followed their heart to further pursue their aviation, engineering, or related interests.

Cambridge Scholars This highly competitive interdisciplinary signature program is made available each year to Junior students who have demonstrated academic excellence and an exceptional work ethic. From the pool of applicants, only fifteen students are selected to take part in the immersive educational experience that includes a two-week Spring stay at Cambridge University where students meet Cambridge faculty, participate in lectures and discussions, and write a college-level essay. Successful students prepare and defend their essays in front of Cambridge professors for academic credit and a grade. Note: COVID restrictions in Spring 2021 prevented the Class of 2022 from traveling to Cambridge for this program.

College & Career Readiness Curriculum Oxbridge Academy's four-year College and Career Readiness Curriculum is organized into six core themes: Self-Discovery, Success Skills, Support Networks, College Planning, Career Planning, and Financial Planning. The curriculum is delivered in an online format and is designed to augment the in-person academic advising program which also offers career guidance, and college counseling to students beginning in 9th grade. Though this is not a credit-bearing program, successful students are able to navigate the challenging college application process with greater confidence and ease.

Independent Research & Study Oxbridge Academy students can independently explore and conduct research projects in collaboration with Oxbridge teachers and prestigious organizations, such as Scripps Florida, Max Planck, Ecology Project International, and Florida Oceanographic Society. These students are encouraged to attend collegiate research conferences to present their research. Participating students earn an elective credit for this program with Pass or Fail grade.
