While students are not required to test, testing is the only way that students can earn potential college credit. Tests are scored on a scale of 1 - 5; typically colleges grant credit for scores of 3 or higher. How much credit is received varies by college, but at the University of Minnesota, a score of 3 or higher on the biology test will allow a student to earn four credits; a score of 3 or higher on the Environmental Science test will allow a student to earn 3 credits. Currently, the cost for one credit at the University of Minnesota is over $500. With an AP registration fee of $50, testing could potentially be a cost-savings decision down the road.
