Learn about Readers’ Theater in the OLG Library

In Library class this year, Kindergarteners and eighth graders have had the opportunity to participate in a readers’ theater program, in which students bring a story to life by reading parts of the script. According to Reading Rockets, a subsidiary of WETA, Readers’ theater gives students practice in reading fluently and helps students build confidence. For more information on how to use readers’ theater as an educational strategy please visit <https://www.readingrockets.org>

Thank you for the Library Donations!

Thank you to all families who have donated books to OLGK this year!

Special thanks are in order to the Weithman family and Quigley for their generous Library donation. Where do new books to the Library come from? Generally, new books to the Library come from Book Fair funds and Library donations. Look out for an announcement on the OLGK Library website for when the Library will actively begin seeking donations. Many thanks again for your support.
