

Cackle Cackle Croak written and illustrated by Rebecca Snay

Larry the Crow loves to sing, but when you're a crow, no one wants to hear you. Each time Larry sings, one of his forest friends becomes startled by his harsh voice. Larry takes a moment to reflect in silence and he notices the music of nature around him. With a new appreciation for the diversity of sound and music, Larry refines his singing and gently lulls the animals and the reader to sleep

A local author, graduated from Killingly High School, Rebecca Snay teaches middle school language arts. The daughter of two music teachers, Rebecca grew up in a house filled with songs and poetry. She holds a bachelor's degree in English and journalism and a master's degree in education. She enjoys reading to her son, teaching creative writing, running, and drawing
