In her 2017 EHS graduation speech, Camille Neal-Harris transformed Charles Dickens's famous lines into her own heartfelt and insightful proclamation: "Between the ages of foolishness and wisdom, past the spring of hope, onto the summer of responsibility, young adulthood, the whole world is within our grasp." Recipient of EHS's highest honor, the Warrior Award, Camille consistently embodies the courage, determination, and intellectual curiosity required to fully take advantage of the endless possibilities awaiting all our graduates.

During her four years at Chatham Hall, a girl's boarding school in Virginia, Camille served as Honor Council President, completed a rigorous Global Scholars Program, and even spent a summer interning with the Kings County Supreme Criminal Court. Furthermore, she also conducted her own academic research, culminating in a presentation of her twenty-five-page paper on what it means to be a global citizen and how that intersects with levels of internal and external awareness.

This fall, Camille continues her journey at Rice University in Houston, Texas! So far, her favorite class is Sculpture, as it provides a creative outlet from the many STEM classes in which she is also enrolled. As for future plans? Camille is excited to enroll in an EMT course, so she can be a part of Rice's on-campus Emergency Medical Services. We are so proud of Camille and all that she has, and surely will, accomplish!
