Communicating with Children: You Make the Difference

It's easy to spend time with your family and not talk at all. Many parents and kids often are attached to cell phones and other electronics. When talking is part of your daily routine, it becomes easier to deal with difficult subjects.

Spotlight on Mr. Turner's Class

Recently, the sixth-grade class completed a story about a marble champion. As a follow up activity, they researched various games that could be played with marbles. Each group was to pick a game and design a poster that described the game, the rules, setup, and objective to win. The posters were illustrated and displayed, so that everyone could see how each game was played.
