OSHKOSH AREA SCHOOL DISTRICT PROJECT PROGRESS REPORT

WHAT'S NEW?

The Oshkosh Area School District's Facilities and Finance Committee reviewed the results of the first survey for school name suggestions, narrowed the results down to three options to name the school in honor of: Jessie Jack Hooper, Paul H. Poberezny, and Vel Phillips. A second community survey invited OASD families, students, staff, and Oshkosh community members to vote on their top school name selection. The Committee will be reviewing the results in the coming weeks to decide on a school name to present to the School Board.

PLANNING & DESIGN UPDATE

The Middle School drawings were completed in mid-November and sent out for bidding. The bidding process will continue into mid-December, and General Contractor selections will be announced in January. The Oshkosh Area School District and Bray Architects have also been working very closely with the City of Oshkosh in numerous planning meetings to get this project to meet municipal code. This past month, the City of Oshkosh City Council has approved the redirection of one-way traffic on Central and Kentucky Streets, this is a critical move for the design of the new Middle School. Over the next month, the OASD and Bray will be attending City Council meetings to gain the approval of the Zoning and Planned Development process as it relates to the new Middle School.

PLANNING & DESIGN UPDATE - continued

For the upcoming Secure Entry Projects, Read Elementary School, Oakwood Elementary School, North High School, and West High School are on track to complete the design stage by mid-December, allowing the bidding process to occur from mid-December through the end of January. Very specific questions regarding equipment types and locations, functionality, and other details are being discussed at this point of the design process.

WHAT'S NEXT?

- » Bids are due in December for the new Middle School. The OASD and Bray Architects will review the bids for a recommendation to the Board of Education in January.
- » In January, the OASD and Bray Architects will begin design work on the new Elementary School that will be located at the current Webster-Stanley Elementary/Middle School site.
