<td>Improving Learning Through the Circuit: Hands-On Manipulatives and Collaborative Activities</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Science is best learned by hands-on activities including labs, manipulatives and dissections. Research also shows that students who physically experience scientific concepts understand them more deeply. The healthcare pathway at the high school includes human biology, dynamics of healthcare, medical terminology, and patient care communication. These are all classes that incorporate collaboration, manipulatives, and inquiry to promote student learning. This grant will be used to purchase a Circuit Maker which is a die-cutting machine where one can create images and designs with Design Maker software and then print them out. Materials that can be used in this machine include cardstock, vinyl, wood, and fabric. Students have the ability to learn and demonstrate engineering design processes in addition to actually creating manipulatives that can be used in their classes. Instead of just providing models or diagrams when teaching body systems, each student will be able to create his/her own manipulator to take home as a study tool. For instance, instead of just diagramming a skeletal model of the human body, students can create individual bones, put the bones together from the disarticulated skeleton and then write descriptions on the back.

Motion #1 that, upon the recommendation of the Interim Superintendent, the Board of Education approve placements and instructional services for students with disabilities, including those received by the district and those attending schools for which tuition is charged, for the month of January as noted in the detailed listing maintained on file in the Board Secretary’s office.

EXPLANATION

Students with IEPs whose needs cannot be met in the programs that exist within the district are placed in outside private and public schools approved by the New Jersey Department of Education for students with disabilities. Attendance is monitored monthly in order to ensure students are enrolled as agreed and the state-mandated contract with each school states that two weeks' notice is required for removal of a student. Case managers make at least two visits per school year for each student enrolled in one of these schools, including one visit that involves the convening of an IEP Team to complete an annual review of the student's IEP. In order to preserve confidentiality, all students are identified only by their local and/or state identification numbers in any listing that is maintained outside the Office of Pupil Services.
