

What DWS Parents Say

“Waldorf Schools are committed to providing an education that focuses on the whole person. The breadth of the curriculum opens doors with experiences that expand the horizons of our children and prepares them to contribute to our world in so many different ways. Furthermore, it is an education that respects and upholds their right to have a childhood. As a scientist, I value the way in which physics, chemistry, biology and mathematics are introduced and woven into the curriculum and placed in context with complementary material from history, art and culture. I am so pleased that all my children have had the good fortune to be educated at the Davis Waldorf School.”

*Simon Cherry, Ph.D. Professor,
Biomedical Engineering, UC Davis, Davis Resident*

“Our sons both attended the Davis Waldorf School’s two year kindergarten program and are now flourishing in their grades programs. We are, in the 21st century, allowing them to become Renaissance men. Not only are they achieving a high academic standard, they are also artists, musicians and explorers of the world around them.”

James Hickey, Software Development Engineer, Hewlett Packard, Davis Resident