

The Kindergarten: A Place to Grow

... Creative play which helps children build social skills and fosters the kind of active imagination necessary for future learning in all disciplines. A child who has learned the magical process of baking bread has had a hands-on experience with a chemical process; a child who has built things with open-ended materials will have experiences of principles revisited when studying physics in later grades.

