

How to figure out which English class is right for you:

How prepared are you to do the following tasks independently in a college level class, without extra support or additional instruction? (Check one) 	A	B
	Not Yet prepared	Prepared Now
Write academic essays that are 5 pages long or longer
Write an introduction paragraph for an academic essay
Write focused body paragraphs that start with topic sentences
Write a conclusion paragraph for an academic essay
Write different kinds of papers, like argument essays and summary-response essays
Research a topic and find good college level sources
Use a format style like MLA or APA to cite sources
Proofread and fix grammar and punctuation errors on your own
Read and understand difficult academic texts
Use reading strategies like annotation to understand difficult texts
Find the author's main ideas and overall thesis of texts that you read

Count the checks in column A _____

Count the checks in column B _____

Key

5 or more checks in Column A? Congratulations! You are ready for CCR 092! In this class, you will write college level compositions but with plenty of training and support. CCR 092 is a great class to prepare you for ENG 121. It offers 5 credits of strong support for your academic reading and writing skills. These are not transfer credits, but they are covered by financial aid, and a very large majority (85%) of students who first take CCR 092 go on to pass ENG 121.

7-8 checks in Column B? Congratulations! You are ready for CCR 094 with ENG 121! In this class, you will write multiple college level compositions but with an added support class to help you be successful. CCR 094 provides support for ENG 121. It offers 3 credits of support, and you take ENG 121 at the same time. The 3 credits of ENG 121 are transfer credits, and a large majority (80%) of students who take CCR 094 also pass ENG 121.

9 or more checks in Column B? Congratulations! You are ready for ENG 121! In this class, you will write multiple college level compositions without an additional support class. This is the first college level, guaranteed transfer writing course. It is 3 credits of fast-paced writing experience.