FROM YOUR Y.E.S COUNSELOR

Parents: Are you seeing an increase with changes in mood, attention, and behavior in your child? Are they tardy or going to the bathroom more than usual at school or home? Has their friend group changed, are they isolating more, communicating less or using cologne, perfume, gum, mouthwash or air fresheners often?

These may be signs they are experimenting with vaping nicotine, marijuana or other substance use. If you have questions or concerns about your child, you can check out this Community Resource sheet for Parent support (see CHANGES Parent Support Network) or websites for gathering information on substances or ideas on how to start conversations with your teen about drug use. There are also helplines for you and your teen--all free resources! Or you can contact Andrea Frost, your RHS Substance Use Prevention Intervention Specialist at andrea@youtheastside.org
