As Historians we will...

Recognise why people did things, why events happened and what happened as a result- Why did William The Conqueror build Motte and Bailey castles?
 Identify differences between ways of life at different times – What would it be like to lie in a castle?
 Compare two versions of past events – Queen Elizabeth II coronation

As Geographers we will...

Recap on some universal vocabulary: castle, town, village,
 Recap on some basic physical geographical vocabulary to refer to: forest, hill, mountain, river, soil, valley
 Use world maps, atlases and globes to identify the UK.
 Use simple fieldwork and observational skills to study the geography of our local area- Warwick/Kenilworth castle

Knowledge

Motte and bailey Motte and bailey castles appeared in England after the Norman Conquest of 1066. They were a common feature in England by the death of William the Conqueror in 1087. Their construction was the start of what was to become a massive castle building programme in England and Wales.

Anglo- Saxons

The Anglo-Saxon age in Britain was from around AD410 to 1066. They were a mix of tribes from Germany, Denmark and the Netherlands. The three biggest were the Angles, the Saxons and the Jutes. The land they settled in was 'Angle-land', or England.

William the Conqueror

William was born in Normandy in France. After King Edward the Confessor died in 1066, Harold II was made king by the people, but others fought for the throne and this led to the famous Battle of Hastings where William the Conqueror defeated King Harold to become king of England in 1066

Richard Neville

16th Earl of Warwick (22 November 1428 – 14 April 1471), known as Warwick the Kingmaker, was an English nobleman. He became Earl of Warwick through marriage, and was the wealthiest and most powerful Englishmen. One of the leaders in the Wars of the Roses, originally on the Yorkist side but later switching to the Lancastrian side, he was instrumental in the deposition of two kings, which led to his epithet of "Kingmaker".

Queen Elizabeth II

Queen Elizabeth II – Born 21st April 1926
 Elizabeth became queen on February 6, 1952, and was crowned on June 2, 1953. She is the mother of Prince Charles, heir to the throne, as well as the grandmother of Princes William and Harry. She is the longest reigning monarch this year marks her 70th year.
