

School Day for Students

The school day shall be scheduled in such a way that each student is given the best practical opportunity for his or her own development. The length of the day and the arrangement of time segments within it need not be uniform for all schools or for all grade levels. The professional staff shall be encouraged to use flexibility in designing the daily schedule so long as the following considerations are met:

1. The learning activities for students are carefully guided and supervised.
2. Each student has opportunities to receive individual assistance from teachers.
3. The cost of the transportation system is not increased beyond the amount, which would be necessary to operate a fixed, uniform type of school day.
4. Parents and the general public are thoroughly informed of the reasons for the beginning and ending of the school day and for the variations, which exist.

Principals shall determine the working schedules of personnel in their schools.
