About the Roseburg School Bond

1

How are school buildings and renovations funded in Oregon?

School districts receive state funding to deliver instruction to students and to operate, but the state does not pay for new buildings or major renovations. Funds for capital construction are primarily raised through community bond measures. Roseburg has passed one school bond in the past 40 years.

Would the school bond impact my property taxes?

The $154 million bond measure would cost property owners an estimated $1.85 per $1,000 of ASSESSED value over a 20-year period. A property's assessed value is the lower of its real market value or its maximum assessed value. Real market value is typically the price your property would sell for in a transaction between a willing buyer and a willing seller. CLICK HERE TO FIND YOUR ASSESSED VALUE.

How do our taxes for schools compare to others in the region?

Roseburg Public Schools' permanent tax rate is lower than all other districts in Douglas County as well as the majority of districts in neighboring counties. Taxpayers in our district are currently paying the second lowest tax rate for schools out of all similarly sized school districts in the State of Oregon, and if the bond is passed, will still be in the lower half of all similarly sized school districts in the state.
