

Britton's Focus Is Support For Educators — And Speed

TUPELO, Miss. — As the Deputy Superintendent for the Tupelo Public School District, Kim Britton says it's critical to ensure all educators have the resources and support needed to be successful.

It's been her focus each of the 10 years she's been in her current role, and something she greatly appreciated as a teacher and principal.

A native of Pearl who graduated from Southern Miss and earned her master's at Mississippi College, this lover of turnip greens and cornbread has spent 18 total years in Tupelo following a brief career as a collections representative for Bell South.

She's also grateful for her own support cast, led by husband Major Jack Britton and twins Cami and Carley, along with the families' big, fat German Shepard, Treasure.

Away from the hustle and bustle of education, she loves baking, listening to music, reading and hosting dinner parties. If there's a favorite destination spot, it's easily Orlando.

And if there's a surprise fact or two, it's that she loves muscle cars and the speed and sounds they generate. That makes sense, as her first car was a Pontiac Trans Am standard shift with 6 speeds.

This week's TPSD Administrative Focus and winner of a Buffalo Wild Wings gift card is TPSD Deputy Superintendent, Kim Britton.
