

Understanding Title I Programs:

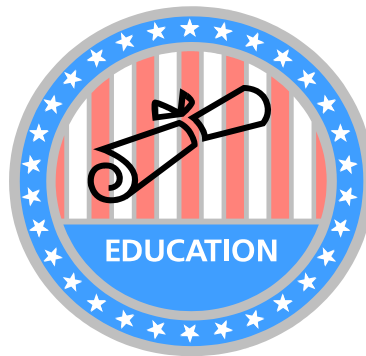

An Overview for Parents

What is Title I?

Title I is the largest federal educational program, founded in 1965 as the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, reauthorized in 2002 as part of the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 (NCLB), Amended as the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA)

What is Title I?

Its purpose is to make sure that all children have the opportunity to have a high quality education.

What is Title I?

Title I provides extra support to schools to help students who need it the most. These are the children who are the furthest from meeting the standards the state has put in place for all children.

Title I Serves

The program serves millions of children in elementary, middle and high schools across the country every year.

At PPS, currently 6 out of 17 schools

PPS has prioritized the PreK- grade 8 schools

Title I also serves eligible children who attend parochial and private schools in Portland.

How Title I Works

Funds are provided to schools based on the number of students qualifying for the free/reduced price lunch program.

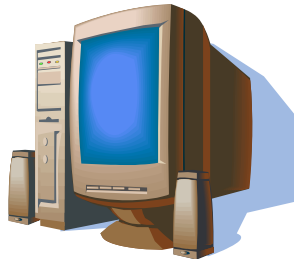

How Title I Works

In Title I schools teachers, administrators, other school staff, and parents work to:

- set school wide goals for improvement;
- measure and report student progress;
- identify students most in need of educational help;
- develop programs that improve regular classroom instruction; and
- involve parents in all aspects of the program.

How Title I Works

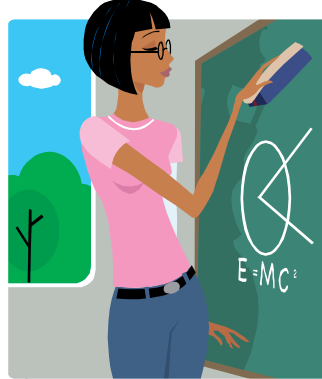

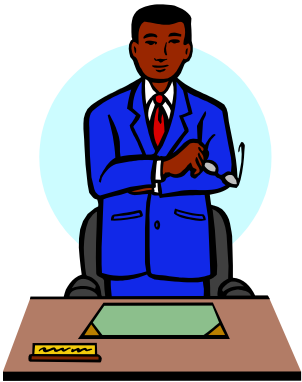

Title I schools may offer:

- Extended learning opportunities;
- additional teachers, ed techs and coaches;
- additional training for school staff;
- extra time for instruction;
- a variety of teaching methods and materials; and
- workshops and classes for parents.

How Title I Works

The school's program is revised each year by administrators, teachers and parents.

How Title I Works

Title I serves children through:

- Schoolwide Programs (SWP)
 - Schools that have at least 40 percent of their children receiving free/reduced price lunch can develop Schoolwide Title I Programs to serve all students.
- Targeted Assistance Schools (TAS)
 - Schools that use Title I funds to focus on helping students most at risk of failing state assessments. Targeted assistance schools have special requirements such as the identification of students to receive services and time limits for instruction during the school day.

As a Parent You're Part of the Title I Team

You have more influence in your child's education than any teacher or school.

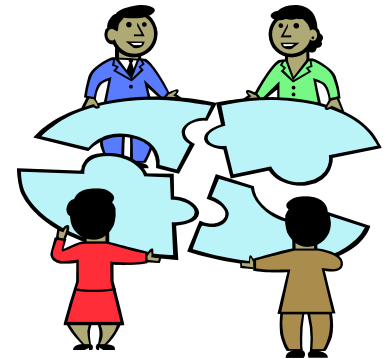

Your involvement can increase your child's achievement.

As a Parent You're Part of the Title I Team

By taking an active role in your child's education you're showing your child :

- how important he or she is to you;
- how important education is to you; and
- that you and the school are a team.

As a Parent You're Part of the Title I Team

You know your child best, so it's up to you to:

- share information about your child's interest and abilities with teachers;
- know whether your child's needs are being met;
- speak up, ask questions, provide feedback and partner with your child's teacher; and
- support learning at home.

As a Parent You're Part of the Title I Team

Your school needs you to help to:

- develop school wide goals;
- plan and carry out programs;
- evaluate programs;
- develop and/or revise the parent-school-student compact and parental involvement policy; and
- help our school and students succeed

As a Parent You're Part of the Title I Team

Title I can help make sure that you, your child and your school have a winning team!
