Matthew Kozlowski (CC 2006), is the Vice President of Business Operations for Dallas Data Systems, Inc. The main focus at Dallas Data Systems is to assist local government, whether that be through software solutions, consulting, or services. We also value the communities that we work in by assisting with charitable events that benefit the residents of those communities.

How do you feel your education from Central Catholic helped get you where you are today?

I have the utmost respect for my teachers in my days at Central Catholic. They truly cared about us and our futures and didn't accept anything short of what they thought our best was. Mr. Parney was instrumental in that for me. We had several conversations when he felt like I wasn't performing up to a standard I should set for myself. I also have to thank Mr. Murphy for starting my interest in local government. He didn't always teach from a textbook, but instead taught us essential life skills and knowledge.

What advice would you give to current Berks Catholic students?

I would just ask that you try to find your peak potential, and then live up to it every day. Every day is an opportunity to advance and improve yourself. Trust your teachers when they are trying to get something more out of you. They truly want to see you become the best version of you.

Tell us a little bit about yourself and what you like to do in your spare time.

In my spare time I coach baseball at Berks Catholic. I also love to spend the weekends with my wife Libby, and boys Emmett and Jonah. You can usually find us outside playing whatever sport is in season for them.
