Tips for building Family Support Asset (last newsletter)

Be consistent. Be loving. Develop openness so that the children in your family know that you're available and you'll love them--no matter what. If you're exhausted or angry, say so. Tell children what you're feeling so that your body language and words are consistent. Inconsistent messages are often misinterpreted by youth to mean that they have done something wrong.

Also try this...

In your home and family: spend one hour a week alone with each of your children. Take a walk, listen to music, cook together, or just hang out.

In your neighborhood and community: try to arrange a babysitting swap with a neighbor. It's important for parents and guardians to have time away from children, doing things they enjoy alone and with other adults. This will make family time that much sweeter.

In your school or youth program: assign students and participants activities that encourage family sharing. For example, one Minnesota class studying a Native American tribe learned that tribal members passed down stories from one generation to the next. The teacher assigned students to ask their parents for family stories to share with the class.

Tips for Parent Drop-off/Pick-up

- When using the drop-off/pick-up lane to drop-off your child in the morning or pick-up after school, please do not park in this lane and get out of your car. If your child needs assistance getting in and out of your car, please park in a space in the visitor's parking lot to assist your child. We need to keep this lane moving.
- Remember, if you do choose to park your vehicle and walk up to drop-off/pick-up your child, please cross at the crosswalk only. Drivers in the drop-off/pick-up lines, please honor the crosswalk and keep this open for people to cross.

Please look for future tips in your Remind messages. Thank you for your cooperation.
