MEET THE ART TEACHER - Dani Vinueza

EDUCATION AND BACKGROUND

Dani Vinueza is a multilingual practicing artist from Chicago who has been working with children of all ages for over 10 years. She attended Loyola University, where she obtained her B.S. in Psychology with dual concentrations in developmental psychology as well as Women Studies and Gender Studies. From the first mural she created at twelve years old, she has loved all creative endeavors and is constantly exploring new media and ways of working. She has furthered her foundations in art with formal instruction from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago where her passion for oil painting grew.

TEACHING PHILOSOPHY

"I aim to foster creativity and design thinking in education and to provide relevant and engaging art experiences to all students while promoting how important art is in the world of education. I believe in the power of making art: encouraging my students to create works as they discover their own artistic voices. As an educator, I take a holistic approach to addressing the emotional, social and cultural needs of my students making sure to provide an equitable experience. I partake in multiple instructional strategies addressing individual strengths and challenges to support their learning and development. I am honored and humbled to be in a position to bring arts to the next generation and inspire them to keep creating."

Science from Scientists

Painter's first science lessons from Dr. Esther started Tuesday 11/16 grades 3-5 with Dr. Esther. This is a paid partnership funded this year by Genentech!

Dr. Esther is a Ph.D. Ecology graduate from Cornell University. BIG RED!
