RANGER ROUND UP

From the Principal's Desk

Parent/Teacher Conferences: Yes, They Are Important for High School Students

As students get older the number of parents attending parent/teacher conferences decreases significantly. However, parents of high school students should not discount the importance of attending conferences. This year's conferences are on Zoom and are easier than ever to attend. No need to even leave your house, fight traffic or stand in lines waiting to conference. As we continue to combat the educational and social emotional impact of Covid-19, it is more important than ever to build connections with your student's teachers.

Show your child that you care about their education. There is overwhelming evidence that students learn more and do better in school when they know their parents are actively involved in their schooling. Your child may act like they don't want you talking to their teachers, but they do need you and do appreciate you coming.

Improve communication between parents and teachers. Establishing relationships with your child's teachers helps build a mutual bond wrapped around the success of the child. When parents know their child's teachers care and teachers know that the parents care, a team approach of support is developed. When students know that their teacher and their parents are working together, they put forth greater effort and know they can get help when they struggle.

Learn something new about your child. Parent/teacher conferences can be a time to discuss academic or behavioral issues, or a time for teachers to tell you something new about their child. Often teenagers don't tell their parents what is happening in school, what they are learning, where they are struggling, or new interests they have developed. Your child's teachers see them everyday and often have insight to the student's development parents may not see.

Lakewood High School will be holding parent/teacher conferences on November 18th and 22nd. You may sign up to meet with all of your child's teachers and their counselor. I would recommend meeting with your child's counselor to review pathways to graduation requirements and to start planning for their future. You may find the link to the conference scheduler on our website or copy this link into your web browser.

Reflections

Health, Safety, and Welfare

This month, as we continue to navigate the COVID-19 virus and try to find our way back to "normal", I'd like to talk about common vaccine myths and facts. In Cuyahoga County, the COVID-19 vaccination rate hovers around only 55% of the population fully vaccinated. There was and is much confusion and misinformation being shared regarding COVID-19 and these vaccines, and many residents remain unsure. A concern voiced by many is that COVID-19 vaccines were produced too quickly, and they worry about the safety. We have to remember that researchers were not starting from scratch when developing these vaccines. When a baker creates a new recipe, they don't start from not knowing how to turn on the oven. Scientists know how to make vaccines, and they know about viruses. They looked at COVID-19, and how it compares to other viruses, to develop these vaccines.

The CDC (Center for Disease Control) website (CDC.gov) provides answers to some other common misconceptions about the COVID-19 vaccines. These vaccines are not experimental at this point, and passed all stages of clinical trials. They do not contain microchips or cause you to be magnetic. They are not a live virus and will not alter your DNA or cause you to get COVID-19. There is no evidence that the COVID-19 vaccines cause infertility.

We all worry about the health and safety of our families. The WHO (World Health Organization) and the CDC recommend the COVID-19 vaccine as a safe and effective way to help prevent transmission of the virus. While you can still get the virus even if fully vaccinated, the evidence shows that people generally fare much better if vaccinated, meaning they tend to have fewer symptoms and recover more quickly. Some people do suffer side effects from the vaccine, although these tend to be mild and short lived and are much preferred to actually getting COVID-19. According to the CDC, unvaccinated people are 11 times more likely to be hospitalized with COVID-19 and 12 times more likely to die from it. If you can lessen the chance of getting COVID-19, then you lessen the chance of spreading it, which benefits everyone.

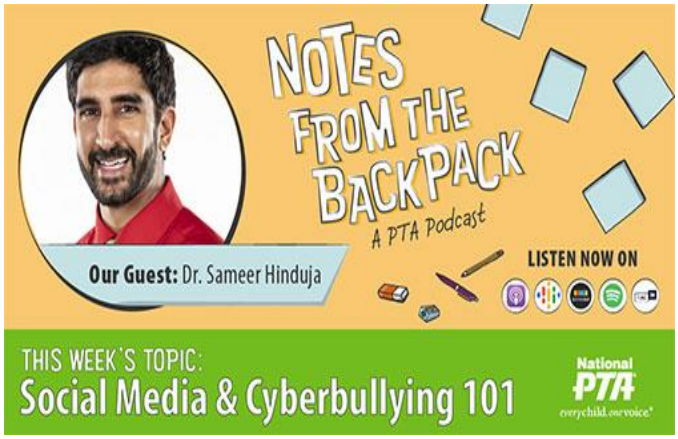

Some people still choose not to trust the WHO and CDC, despite the fact that the purpose of both of these organizations is to preserve life and maintain the health of people across the globe. If you do prefer to study up on your own, make sure you evaluate your reference material for reliability. You can find anything on the internet to back up anything, and some of it looks pretty legit. If you're citing an article, see if you can find that information elsewhere too. What is the source of that information? Even if it's on another website, does it just link back to the same source? If you're referencing a research study, look at the data. What is the size of the study group? Who is the author? Who is publishing this study? Is it peer reviewed? Can the findings be replicated? Say I tell you that 90% of the people in America are Browns fans. I came to this conclusion after asking ten people what their favorite football team is, in a Cleveland bar, on a Sunday afternoon in October. My first statement is not untrue, but the results would vary wildly depending on the study participants, location, whether or not their team was winning, etc. Grammatical errors and misspellings are also indications that you should question the information you are reading.

The introduction of vaccines has saved countless lives over the past 200+ years, and scientists continuously expand on what we know using evidence-based research. This means that recommendations are constantly evolving, based on the latest evidence. If recommendations change, it's because new information was found. As we work through this pandemic, let's just remember that we are all in this together. Of course, we must do what is best for our families, but we must think of our friends and neighbors as well. Banding together, helping one another, respecting other opinions while doing what is most beneficial to all … this is what Lakewood does best!

A reminder - I have fentanyl test strips I'd like to share with our community, provided by the ADAMHS Board of Cuyahoga County. Rather than having a loved one die from fentanyl poisoning, encourage them to test any street drug they may want to take. If you would like some for your household or to share, please let me know. I can deliver!

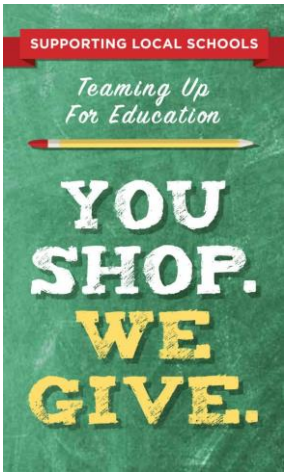

Stay safe and healthy,

Brigette Dineen (brigetteak@hotmail.com)

Directions: Please follow the steps to request your transcript to be sent to the Colleges and Universities you are applying to. You will need to go through the process of requesting a transcript through Naviance for each individual school you are applying to.

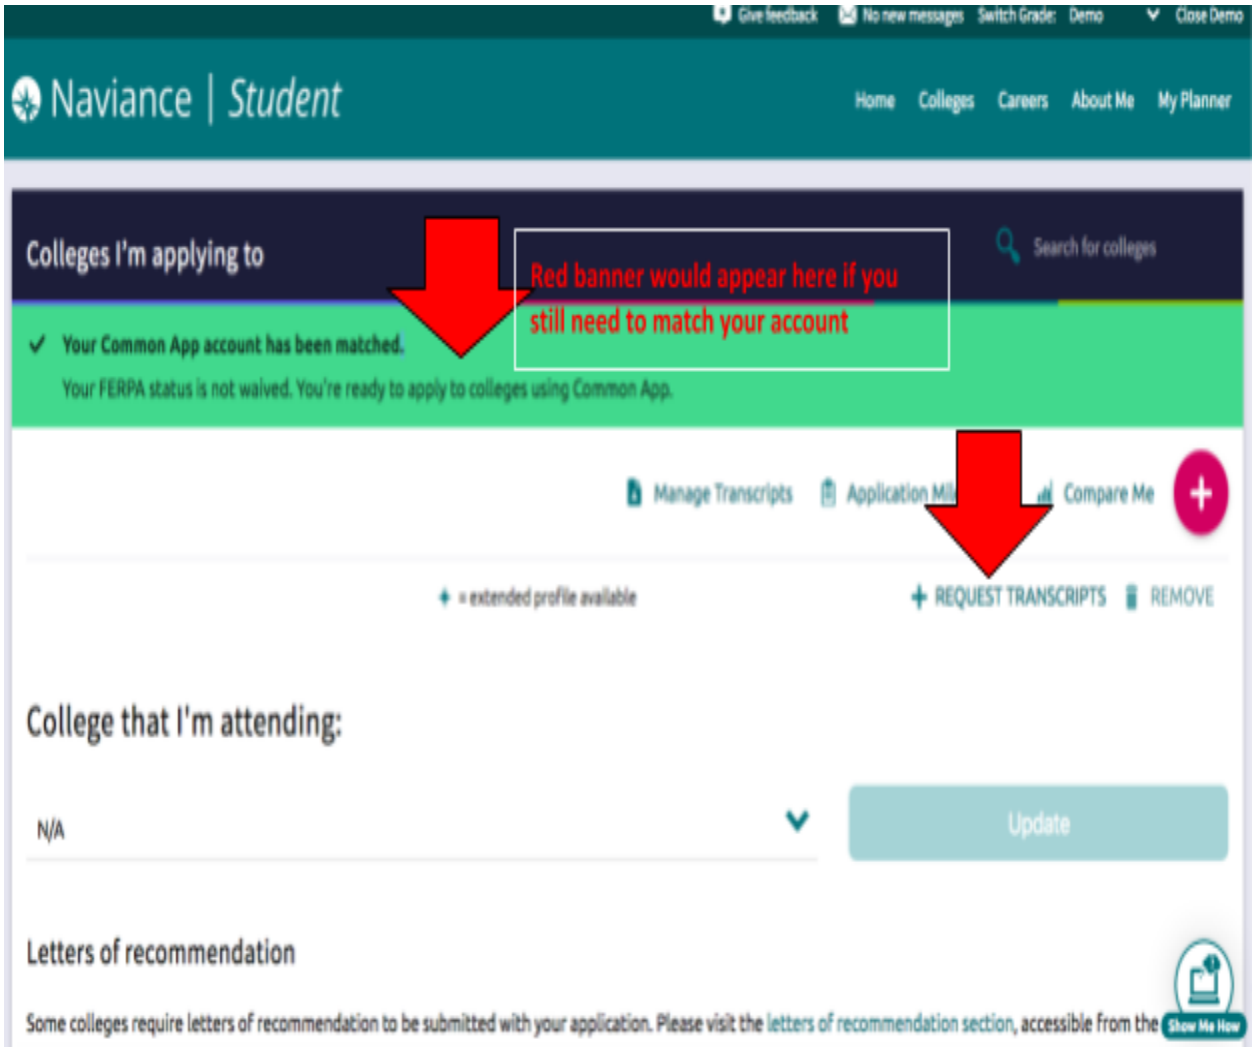

Step 1: Once you log into Naviance, click on the colleges I'm applying to under "My Favorites."

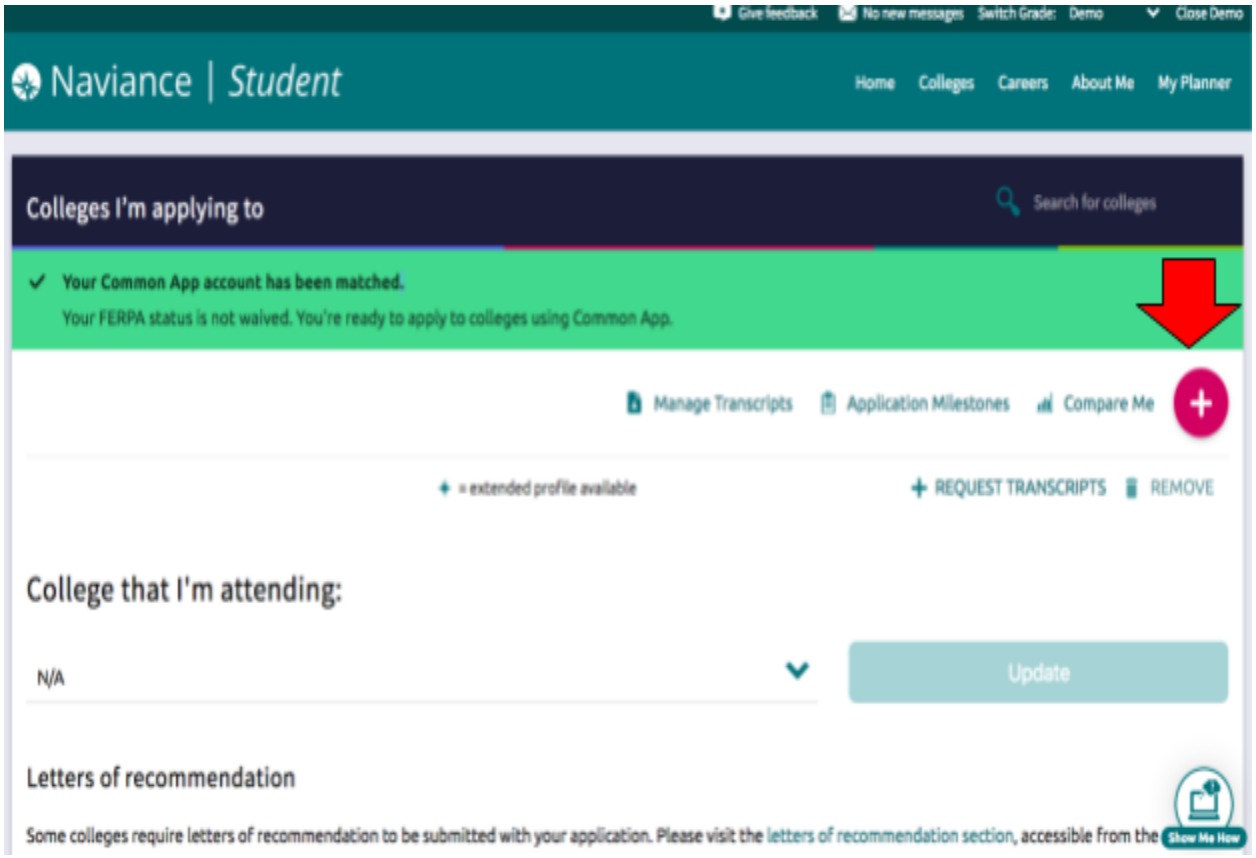

Step 2: Your screen should look like this once you are in the colleges I'm applying to section. If you have the colleges you are applying to already added and listed in this section, please click on + request transcripts to ensure that you have requested your transcript to be sent to each individual college you are applying to. If you do not have any colleges listed under this section, please follow Step 3.

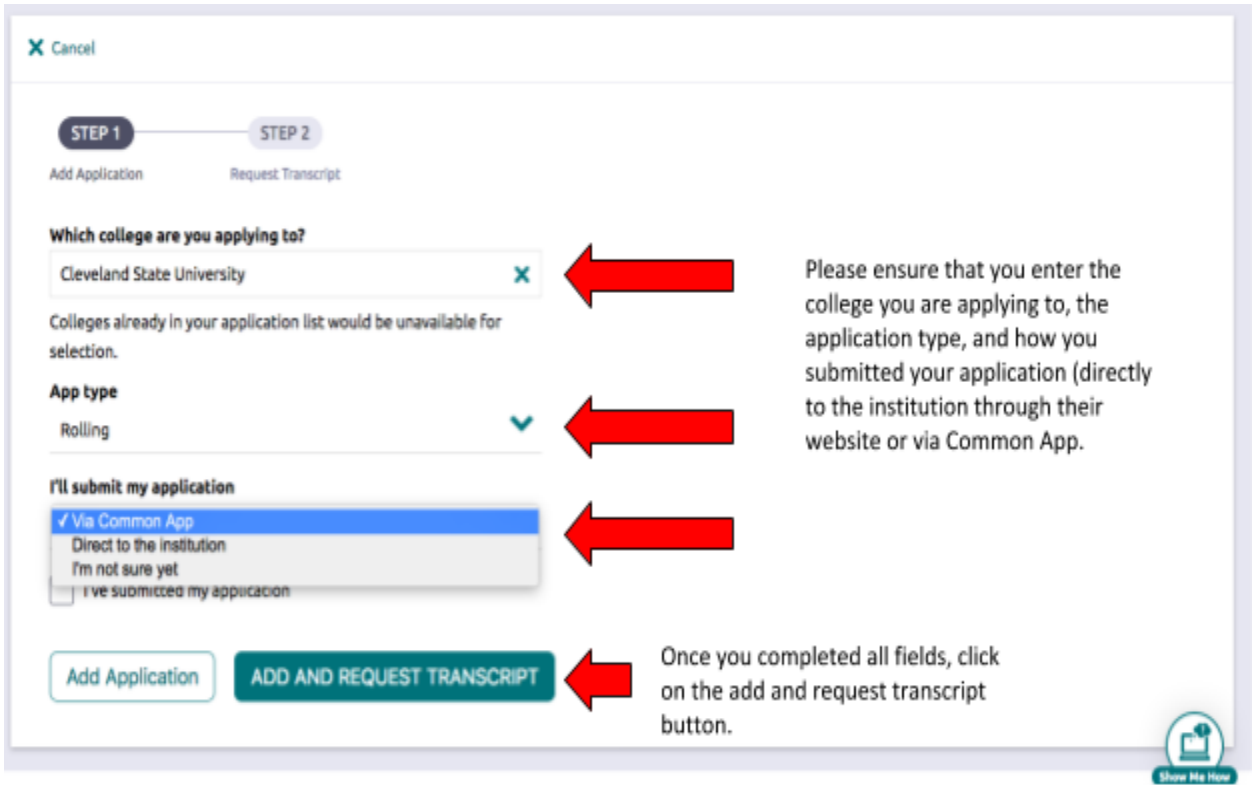

Step 3: If you still need to match your Common App account with Naviance, you will have a red banner at the top of the page with a button that says match account. Please click on match account and follow the directions. Once your accounts link, the colleges will appear in your list. Once they do, please ensure that you click on the + request transcripts to request for your transcripts to be sent to each school. If you are not using Common App, please follow Step 4.

Step 4: If you are not using Common App, please individually add the colleges you are applying to by clicking on the red addition sign in the right hand corner to add the colleges and request transcripts.
