THE SENIOR CLASS PRESENTS A PROFILE OF 1967

TIMOTHY CHRISTIAN HIGH

SAGA

1967
VOL. XIII

SCHOOL

Elmhurst, Illinois

Prospect Road, Elmhurst, is the site of a low red brick building with rows of shining windows, double doors, tennis courts, baseball fields, pastel colored classrooms, long halls, and a huge gymnasium. The silver letters outside proclaim it to be Timothy Christian High School, but this is not Timothy until these things are filled by 353 jostling, boistrous, multi-sized students. This is not a school unless 23 teachers are present to cope with these spirited teenagers and teach them about this life they live so fully. This is not an institution of Christian learning unless, with prayers and planning, parents work to make it so. Timothy is far from being a large high school, but its story is not a small one. Therefore, the 1967 Saga presents a profile of our year.

Weekday mornings were-- noisy bus rides banging lockers shouted greetings
gossip meetings
tolling bells and running . . .

We began each day by talking to God and pledging allegiance to the red, white, and blue.

Classes meant--

*curiously questioning eagerly discussing often laughing
sometimes napping learning something and attempting disruptions. . .*

Because we are teenagers we expressed ourselves in various ways for six hours each day.

*Synonymous with sports were -- diligent practice intense competition sweating and cheering faith, yet failures
 Pepsi, popcorn and victory . . .
 As athletes and spectators we grew strong in both body and character.*

*Together at Timothy was-- throwing picnics and parties crying over "Carousel" smearing the faculty joining organizations working on banquets and acquiring friendships. . .
 Through work and fun we became aware of the interests of others.*

High school is -- knowledge experience
 Christian guidance and lasting friendships. . .
 It is Timothy.

Personnel Provide Indispensable Services

Despite the annoyance of laughing, talking, and singing, Timothy's bus drivers succeeded in giving students a safe and usually prompt ride to and from school. Our janitors, Mr. Drolenga and Mr. Bakker, had the difficult and sometimes frustrating job of keeping our school free from debris. Mrs. Kieft, our editor-in-chief of the daily bulletin, kept the office in tip-top shape. The efficient management of our school depended upon these ready and able assistants.

Board Develops Future Programs

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Bottom: J. De Boer, B. Ottenhoff. Middle: C. Den Besten, R. Tolsma. Top: J. Cevaal, D. Rosendahl, H. Stob.

Twenty hard working men compose the school board of Timothy Christian. It was up to these men to hire teachers, supervise finances, and scrutinize the academic levels of our school. In order to insure smooth operations, various committees such as finance, transportation, building, and promotion were set up to deal with each phase of school life. The executive committee met on an evening before each board meeting to decide issues and to plan the order of business for the general meeting. Each board member served a three-year term during which he made many important decisions which affected the future of our school and students. It was only with God's guidance that these men were able to deal with the school's organization and to provide leadership which was in the best interest of the student body.

New Administration Provides Guidance

A new principal, new teachers and changed policies combined to make the year '66-'67 a significant one. After being orientated into the traditions and customs of Timothy, Mr. Den Besten soon discovered that there were difficulties to overcome, such as communication barriers between students and principal. One often saw our new principal conversing with students about last Friday's game or about the impossible history test just taken. Planning schedules and special activities, disciplining students, and insuring smooth classroom operations made him the busiest man around Timothy. Miss Kingma assumed the position of assistant principal again this year. Her previous experience as principal proved to be extremely helpful in assisting Mr. Den Besten in his administrative duties. She also gave guidance as dean of girls while Mr. Hoving again took the position of dean of boys; they spent many hours counseling students as they made plans for the future.

Bible Courses Are Basic to Curriculum

Bible is an annual one-semester required course for every student. The freshmen studied the history of the Israelites and the nature of the books of the Old Testament. In the sophomore course, this study was continued into the New Testament. Approximately one third of this course dealt with the life of Christ; the rest was devoted to the books of Acts and its relationship to the other books of the New Testament. Juniors studied the history of the church as it developed from the early Roman Catholic church to the varied sects and denominations of today. Designed to help the seniors understand the basis of their faith, the course in reformed doctrine prepared them for the future.

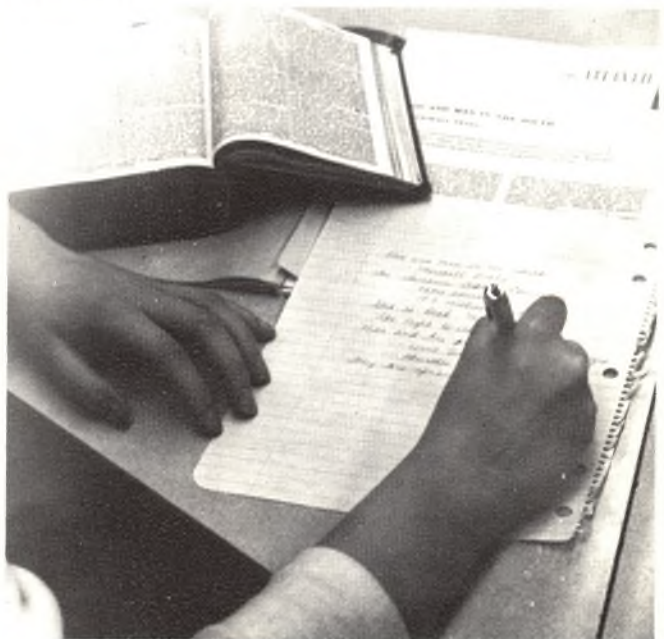

Mr. Duff points out Biblical proof for his answer to Rick Engel's question.

New Trends Augment English Courses

Variety and interest were key words connected with the new trends in our English department. Taking a general literature course, the freshmen studied the forms of the short story, drama, novel, and poetry. The sophomores' one-semester course in grammar was based on the linguistic approach, which looks at language as it exists. Second semester for the sophomores involved the study of early American literature. In their first semester, the juniors studied modern American literature and in the second semester they had a choice of three areas of study: world literature up to the 1700's, modern world literature, or speech. A choice of one full year of English literature or one semester of speech followed by one semester of the more important English literary selections was offered to the seniors. The change in our English curriculum offers a broader and more modern approach to English.

Languages Present Foreign Challenge

"Guten, Tag, Herr Lehrer" and "Ego amo te" are well known foreign phrases occasionally heard in the halls and often in classrooms. College prep students are required to take two years of either Latin or German; third and fourth year courses of each are electives. Level one of German dealt with understanding language basics and oral speaking practices. Second-year German emphasized oral exercises and reading. Those who went on to levels three and four reviewed grammar and studied Germanic culture and customs. In Latin, freshmen studied basic sentence patterns and their translations. Sophomores reviewed what they had learned in their previous year and continued to translate. Juniors and seniors studied Latin from a literary point of view reading from Caesar, Vergil, Horace, Catulus, and Juvenal. Both Latin and German students made use of the new language lab. The teacher was able to speak to each student and listen to individual responses.

Math Essential to Future Plans

The relevancy of mathematics in today's world has made it one of the more important subjects in our curriculum. Since the administration recognizes the importance of math, two years are required for every student. The freshman algebra course consisted of a detailed study of sets, axioms, equations, and functions. In the sophomore year, a complete course in geometry, both plane and solid, is required. Second year algebra, optional for juniors, emphasized in greater detail much of that learned in the earlier course, including a study of rational and irrational numbers, quadratic systems, and trigonometry. The senior course available was advanced math; here the students studied trigonometry in depth and the basic principles of calculus. Students completing these courses were well prepared to continue their studies in college.

Science Explores

Timothy's science department was in a transitional stage this year; course sequence was changed in order to obtain a more desirable curriculum for the future. Within the next few years, some new courses will be added to the sciences already offered. Each student is required to take two years of science; in the future, science majors will be able to take four years in their field. Freshmen who wanted to major in science started with biology; on recommendation they will be able to complete three additional years of science. Laboratory dissections and leaf collections were assigned to the sophomore biology classes. Chemistry was offered as an elective for both juniors and seniors. Since it is basically an experimental science, lab experiments were performed and the data obtained was correlated with the chemistry text book. Physics, previously offered to juniors, will become a senior elective course next year and therefore was not offered this year. For those students who were not planning to be science majors, physical science was offered. This course touched on chemistry basics and the practical approach to various areas of physics.

Don Decker and Judy Korringa collaborate to identify a leaf for their biology projects.

Balancing and accurate measurements are important in every science course.

Social Studies

Develop Maturity

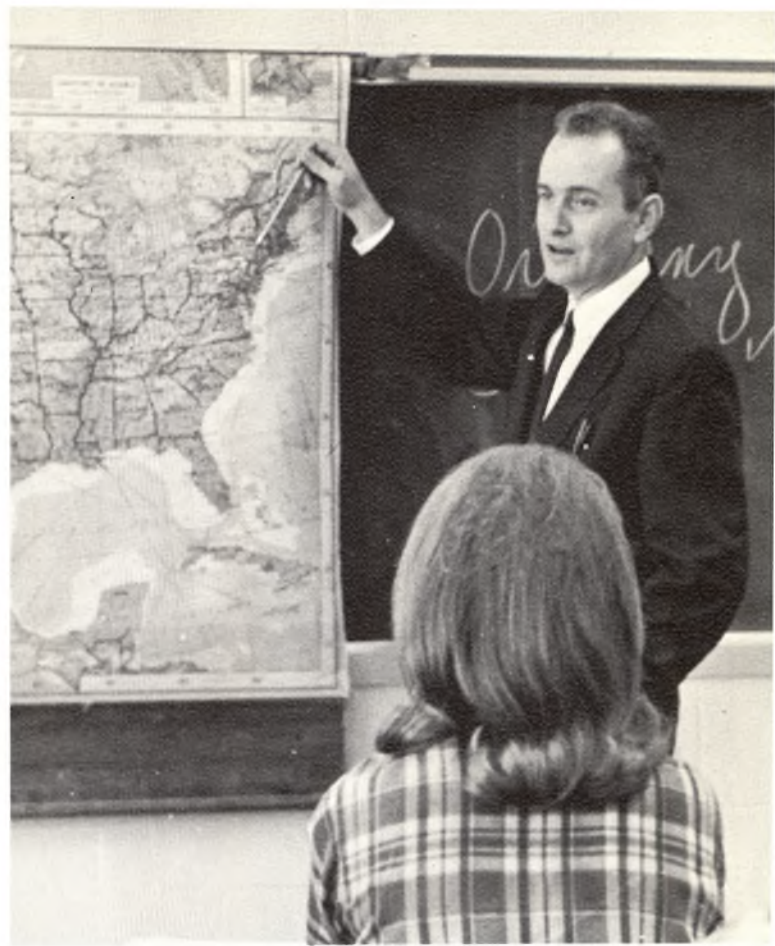

Our social studies courses were designed to instruct and interest the students in their national history and their present government. In world history the students, when learning about the ancient civilizations, were required to draw maps of the various countries. Changes in the world and the causes for these changes were studied in detail. The U. S. history course, covering the period from the discovery of America to the present, placed special emphasis on those events which had the greatest influence on our world today. The highlights of this course included a detailed study of the discovery of America, the Revolutionary War, the Civil War, and World War I and II. The modern history course was designed to present to the students the history of many present day countries and their individual political philosophies. The democratic system and how it works was the topic of discussion and study in American government. Our heritage of great documents was examined in relation to our present government, and governmental branches and their various functions were studied. Panel discussions in this year's social problems classes gave opportunity for all the seniors to analyze such problems as drug addiction, vandalism, and censorship.

Answering the questions raised by the class was the test of each social problems panel.

Keeping neat ledgers is a valuable practical experience.

Students Meet Business Demands

Dexterous fingers played the lead role in typing classes; this year, nearly 240 fingers busily pecked from A to Z. Typing consisted mainly of practice forms based on actual office problems from the new textbook, Gregg Typing Series, Advanced. Although the curriculum remained unchanged, new equipment was added to this department, including several manual typewriters and two electric models. The students used the Teleron, a machine for training them in the use of the telephone in business, and the Stenerette, a dictation machine for typists. Mrs. Stryker also dictated letters, emphasizing speed and accuracy. These skills were rated and the results displayed on charts. Students interested in accounting undertook a beginning course in bookkeeping; emphasis was placed on learning to keep ledgers neatly and accurately and learning to operate a calculator and a simple computer.

The new dictaphone inspired Sharon Van Byssum's fingers to type.

New Editions

Refresh Library

Each year our library grows larger; at present it has over five thousand volumes and subscribes to fifty magazines. It was supervised and kept well up to date by Miss Bean, with the library aides giving assistance during school hours. Through the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, the library received aid from the federal government to buy new books. With this money, the library added to its resources for the English department and also started a cartridge film library for our science department. Students found the library an excellent place to do research for term papers, speeches, and daily assignments and spent leisure time there reading for enjoyment. The freshmen were kept busy listening to the collection of music appreciation records, using the headphones in the record corner.

Fine Arts Accentuate Creativity

Girts Purins, B. F. A.
Art

Art

An increased number of art enthusiasts contributed to the expanded art program this year. Several times a week, room 68 became a hubbub of interested students painting landscape oils, sketching portraits, and trying their hands at modern paintings. Mr. Purins taught the beginners the necessary basic skills and gave criticism and encouragement to the more advanced students. These young artists became well informed on the mysteries of color and arrangement as well as the techniques of producing expert charcoals and chalks. This became evident after many exciting creations were presented at this year's Fine Arts Festival.

Music

The freshman music course increased the students' knowledge and appreciation of all types of music, both classical and popular, sacred and secular. While studying the history of music from the Middle Ages to the present time, reasons for changes in the music of these periods were discussed. The course also consisted of a detailed study of important composers such as Beethoven, Wagner, and Mozart. Students listened to records which emphasized the style of the various composers. Near the end of this course, Mr. Mitchell taught his students how to direct music in different time signatures; each student then displayed to his classmates any talent which he might have acquired.

Students Develop Useful Talents

HOME ECONOMICS

The texture and durability of fabric and threads and the analysis of a pattern were some of the basic essentials of sewing taught in home economics. Pinning, cutting, and stay-stitching and six weeks of interior decorating occupied the time of the girls during first semester. Anguished faces told the story better than the smell of burnt crusts second semester. However practice makes perfect and the girls were rewarded by tasting their finished products.

MECHANICAL DRAWING

In the first year of mechanical drawing, students learned to use their tools and to draw relatively simple objects. Advanced students progressed to drawing architectural and three-dimensional objects. Sometimes their abilities were put into practical use as when one student this year drew new plans for our fire drill. The emphasis of the course was on the ability to read and understand plans and to draw neatly and accurately.

Vigor and Poise Gained in Phys Ed

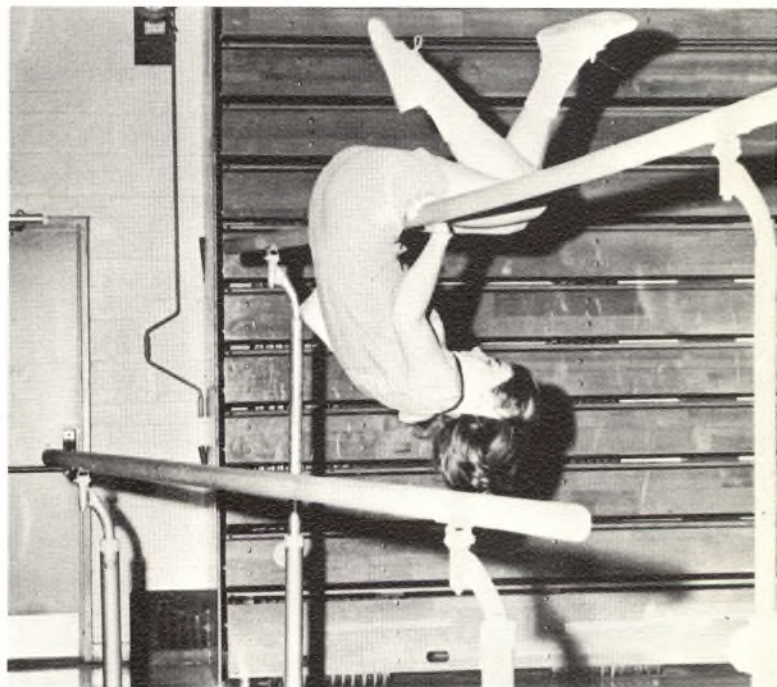

The training of mind as well as the body was emphasized in our physical education program. Exercises, competitive sports, and disciplined physical coordination were a few of the various means used. The new gymnasium made possible a complete year of gym classes. Under the direction of Mrs. Provinse, the girls learned some different and intriguing sports. Field hockey and football were played outside in the fall; basketball and cageball, followed by a full six weeks of informal gymnastics, occupied the winter months. Mr. Prins taught the boys intricacies of the sports most of them had played before. A characteristic gym class consisted of strenuous exercising followed by either a rugged version of touch football or an energetic game of basketball or volleyball.

A new environment, new fears, new friendships--these were the experiences of our first year at Timothy Christian High. Not yet united as a class, we viewed the coming year with nervous anticipation. However, our fears gave way to the thrills and excitement of high school life.

At our first all school party, we fortunately escaped freshman initiation. Since the study hall was the only available auditorium, our inspiring chapels were often perspiring. On November 22, classes were unexpectedly interrupted by the tragic assassination of our President. Thus our first year of high school passed, leaving us with many contrasting impressions.

Our final year at Timothy proved to be something special. We felt the distinctiveness of our role as seniors but also the responsibility of influencing the rest of the student body. After defeating the alumni at homecoming, the varsity basketball team went on to complete another exciting and successful season.

Near the end of the year, scholarships and outstanding honors were awarded to many of our classmates. Ditch day, our class trip, and the Junior-Senior Banquet, our final social events together, were culminated by our impressive Senior Night.

However no senior looks forward to anything with more anticipation and dread than graduation. We anticipated the world of business and school which faced us, but we dreaded the breaking of wonderful friendships with teachers and fellow students. A profile of Timothy would remain forever as a part of our lives.

Faculty Recognizes Outstanding Seniors

To be chosen one of the two outstanding graduates is the greatest honor Timothy grants a student; the choice is based on participation in activities, attitude toward school and fellow students, and scholastic achievement.

Ginny Bult

Ginny was chosen for her leadership evidenced in many ways, for her exceptional job as editor of the Trumpet, for her conscientious work in Student Council, for her contributions to the choir and the girls' basketball team, and for her outstanding scholastic achievement.

Each spring the Awards Banquet is climaxed by the announcement and presentation of the two seniors who have been chosen by a faculty committee as those who best exemplify the qualities of a Christian student.

Jim Vander Kamp

Jim was chosen for his leadership as vice president of Student Council and his work on its special events committee, for his enthusiastic participation in both basketball and baseball, for his work in the class play and for the Trumpet, and for his high academic record.

CLASS OFFICERS Linda Hoff—treasurer, Cal Tameling—vice president, Gary Deters—president, Carol Hoffman—secretary, Miss Bean—sponsor

As upper classmen, the juniors had many new experiences—barbecues, the class play, and the junior-senior picnic and banquet. The new school ring was chosen and the juniors were fitted for them. The old experiences were repeated—classes, exams, and term papers. They took part in chapels, pep rallies, and sports activities. The junior year was both old and new.

Student Life

Rehearsing, changing our identities, slaving over decorations, testing lights and talents-giving much, we keep only the memory of these priceless moments.

Selected scenes from the senior play challenged the convictions of the student body.

We Worship with Praise and Prayer

The chapel services on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays became an integral part of the week for each individual. Guest speakers challenged us to apply our Christianity every day in every way. A brief explanation of the senior play and a sight and sound program given by last year's Summer Workshop In Missions team impelled us to re-examine our personal convictions and beliefs in the light of today's world. Talented students often took advantage of the opportunity to glorify their God by singing and playing instruments. Chapel services were arranged by a Student Council committee and faculty advisors.

"Would Christ do this?" was the question Jan Zeielstra urged us to ask ourselves before we act.

Mr. C. Laning was just one of many speakers who talked with us during our weeks of chapels.

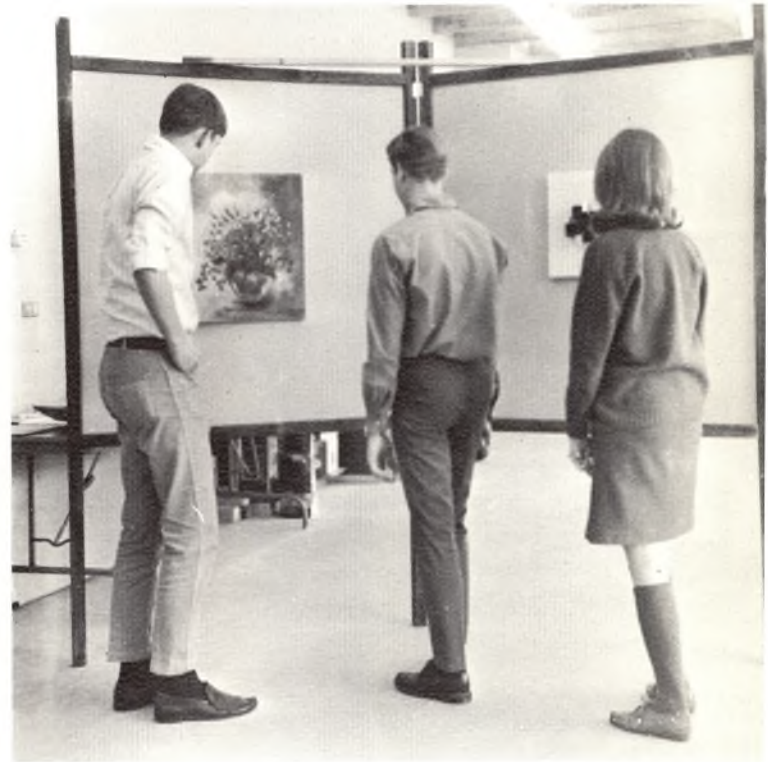

Co-chairmen—Paul Stoub, Penny Groot Committee—M. Sytsma, B. Bilthuis, C. Laning, J. Veldman, P. Zylstra. Not pictured—V. Stob.

The Dutch Masters from Calvin College were one of three groups who sang at the fall folk concert.

Festival Stimulates Creative Arts

New and different display cases, the transformation of Room 68 into an art display room, and two chapel services were the signs this year that the FAF committee was hard at work. Meeting each Wednesday throughout the year, the committee discussed promotion ideas and planned the annual Fine Arts Day and the Evening Festival. As April 19 drew near students could be found practicing interpretive readings, writing original creations, and searching madly for accompanists. On Fine Arts Day itself, students assembled in the auditorium for a special chapel service followed by a movie, The Parable. The remainder of the afternoon was programmed for group discussions on the film and seminars discussing the various festival entries.

The arty atmosphere of Room 68 lured many students to come in and browse during lunch hours.

Queen Penny Reigns; Varsity Triumphs

John Huisman strains every muscle in his attempt to block Ben Essenberg's shot.

'Twas the night of November the twenty-fourth, one of the grandest nights of the year—Timothy's Homecoming 1966. Each class and several clubs had made displays that were placed throughout the school. The work and planning of the entire event was under the direction of Co-chairmen Doris Wieringa and Jon Bradford. The thump of a dribbled basketball, the swishing whisper of the net, and the spasmodic outbursts of the spectators were the sounds that persisted throughout the varsity-alumni games. Although the girls' lost to the alumnae, the boys triumphed and broke the alumni's three-year winning streak by a score of 72 to 44. At halftime, looking calm and elegant in their long gowns, the five nervous court members were escorted down the white carpet in the dimly lit gym. Intense silence was broken by the voice of Queen Gwen, "and Timothy's new queen is. . . Penny Groot!" Tears, roses, thunderous clapping, and flashing lights accompanied Penny to her stage throne, where she and her court watched the remainder of the game. Afterwards the alumni were treated to coffee and a short program, thus winding up another exciting and successful Homecoming.

The referee's signal immediately stops all action.

Ruth Oldenburger, Miriam Teune, Queen Penny Groot, Carol Hoffman, Judy Boer.

With chalk-covered hands, Clair Laning works on the fine arts "Happiness is a place to come home to" display.

Having accepted Gwen's crown and Tom's kiss, Queen Penny turns to face the cheering crowd.

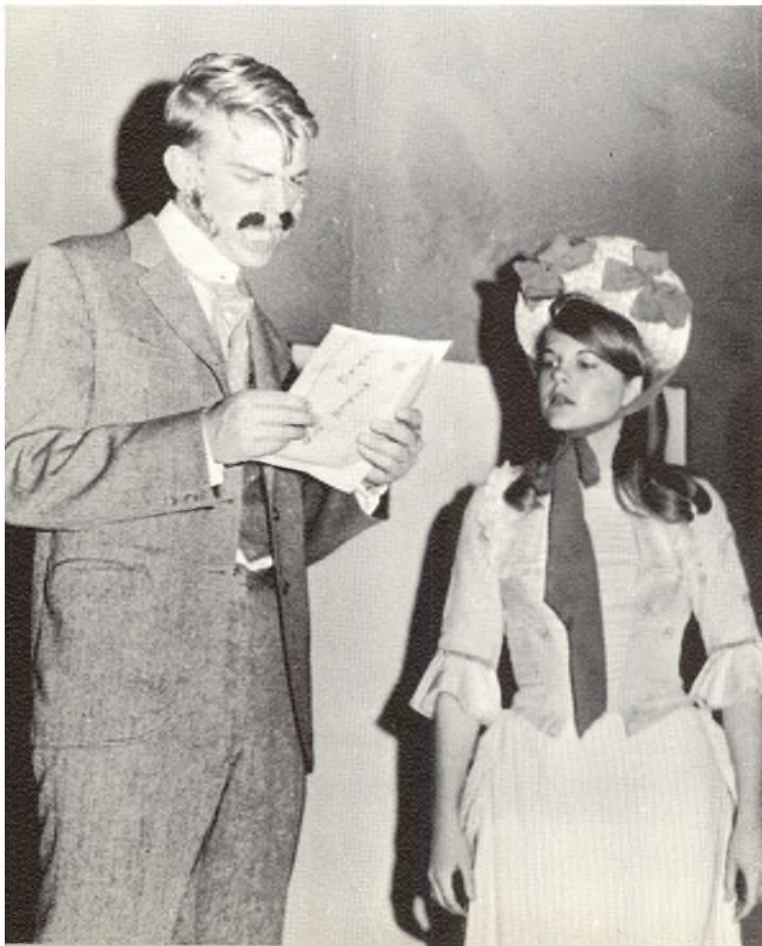

Seniors Plunge into Wild Duck

As the gym lights dimmed and the curtain opened, the audience waited with anticipation. The Wild Duck by Henrik Ibsen changed this expectancy to laughter, curiosity, and sorrow. Under the direction of Mr. Harkema and Mr. Wolterstorff, the senior class presented this dramatic yet humorous play climaxing weeks of practice and work. Two philosophies of life were the basic conflict in the play. The first was that life is worthless unless you live by the complete truth; the conflicting idea, to enjoy life one must live by the "vital lie." This conflict was based on the metaphor of a wild duck. Whenever a wild duck is shot by a hunter it dives deeply into the water and catches onto the weeds at the bottom so it will drown rather than die at the mercy of the hunter's dog. By the end of the play the audience saw how the wild duck symbolized each character in his choosing of his own philosophy of life.

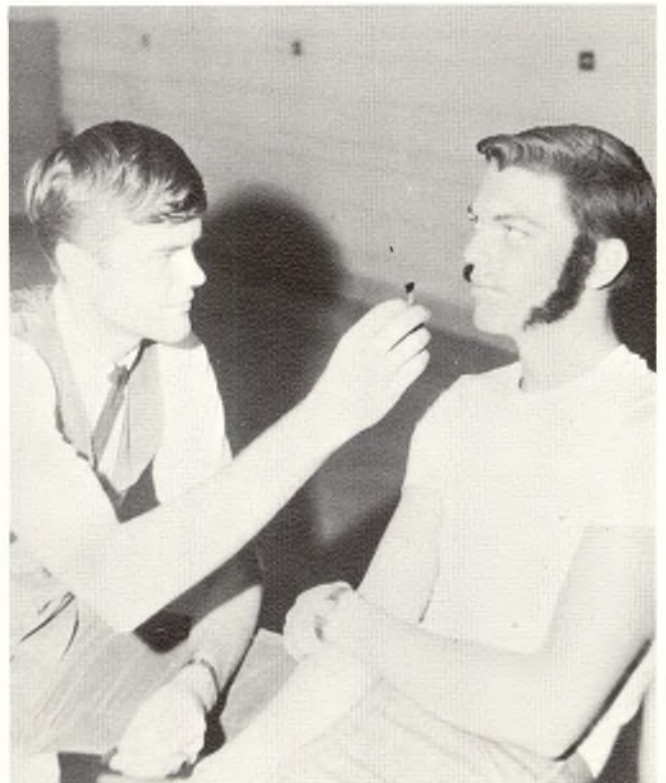

"I try to keep up the vital lie in him."

"Now what's this all about?"

Jim feels that growing whiskers is a painful process.

Painting the new sets was hard dirty work.

"You can see for yourself that the child is dead."

Junior Thespians

Turn Out Triad

A class' first play is always challenging, but this year the juniors tackled the problems of production in triplicate. This demanded more than the usual amount of imagination, hard work, and patience from both the casts and their directors, Mr. Harkema and Mr. Wolterstorff. Whether drama, comedy, or fantasy, the juniors successfully created this variety of dramatic moods.

Set in a rural area, "Trifles" was based on the idea that small things count. Because a man was strangled, the officials and neighbors search the house for clues. The discovery of a strangled bird implicates the wife, but loyalty supercedes men's laws and the evidence is not used. The setting changed to a modern day home for "The Open Window." A young girl with the talent for making up believable fantasies weaves a credible story for the benefit of her aunt's extremely nervous and absurdly funny guest. Presenting a fresh approach to the war, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," the third of the one-act plays, took place in the basement apartment of a charwoman. In order to keep up with the Joneses and claim a connection with the war, the old woman invents a son. When he shows up unexpectedly, the audience is touched by a love that needs only loneliness as its basis.

"Was I a well behaved infant, Mother?"

"Have you seen this week's Fashion Chat?"

"Why here's a bird cage! Did she have a bird, Mrs. Hale?"

Crowns Thrilling Trojan Season

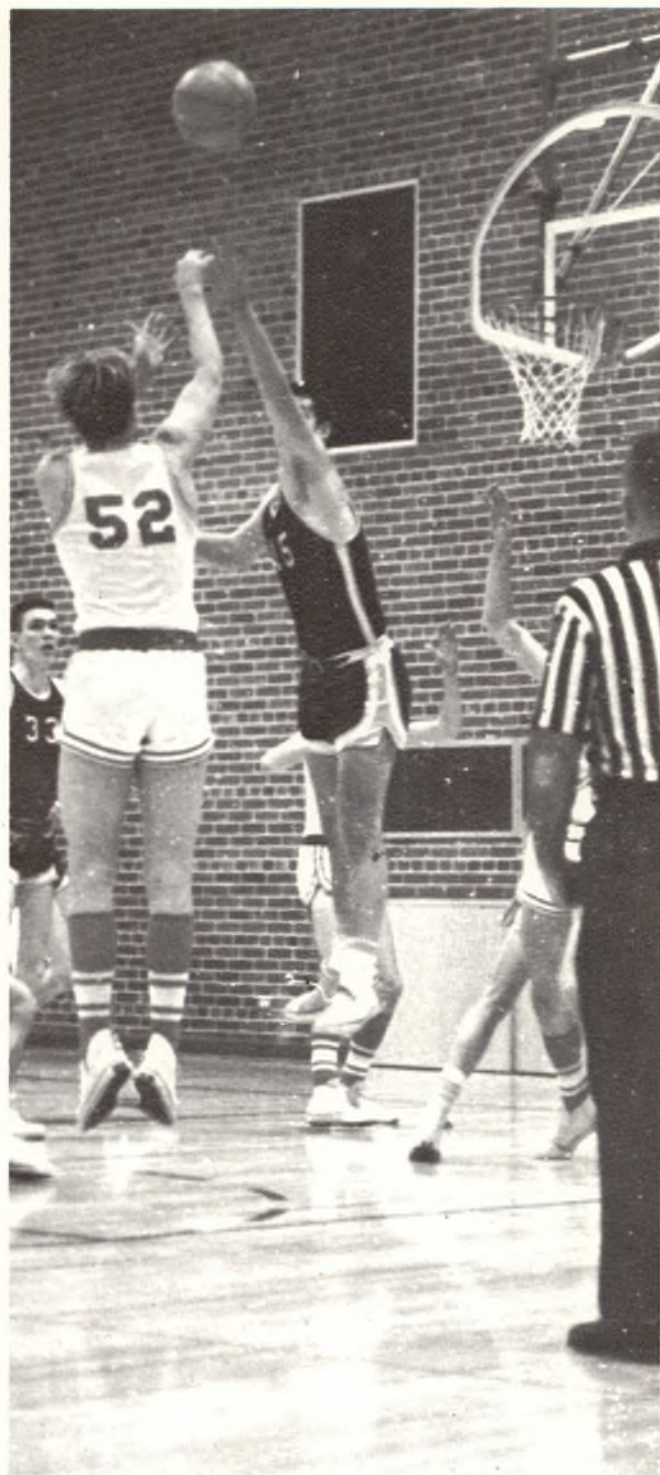

The 1966-'67 varsity basketball season must surely be considered one of the highpoints of the school year as the team finished with twenty wins and three losses. Having many runaway victories and a few stall games, our team prevailed over every league opponent except Luther North, the league champion. This record brought the team a solid second place in the league. The peak of the season, however, was reached at the annual Private School League post-season tournament. Here the team soundly defeated arch-rivals Chicago Christian and Illiana and was placed in the spot they had hoped for: a return match against highly touted Luther North. With a multitude of fans present at Concordia College for the championship game, the Trojans proceeded to outshoot, outrebound and simply dominate the Wildcats until the final buzzer sounded with a 77 to 68 victory for Timothy. This game was undoubtedly the finest team effort of the season. Three members largely responsible for the success of this year's team, John Huisman, Ron Baker, and Dave Schuurman, made the P.S.L. All-Conference team.

CLOCKWISE

All eyes are glued on the ball as "Big" John dunks again, adding two points toward the tournament smash.

With another of his well-timed outside shots, Cal Van Reken breaks Chicago's defense.

Ron Baker meets his match as he jumps against Edwards of Luther North during the tournament.

CLOCKWISE

With the freedom of a nearly empty court, Dave Schuurman goes up for a welcomed two.

Here sit thirteen feet of happy Huisman.

We're Number One!

Mr. Hoving is hoisted on the triumphant shoulders of the exuberant team as the fans applaud wildly.

Ken Stange leaps high and loops the ball sideways for a shot.

Coach Greenfield urges his team to keep fighting till they have the game clinched.

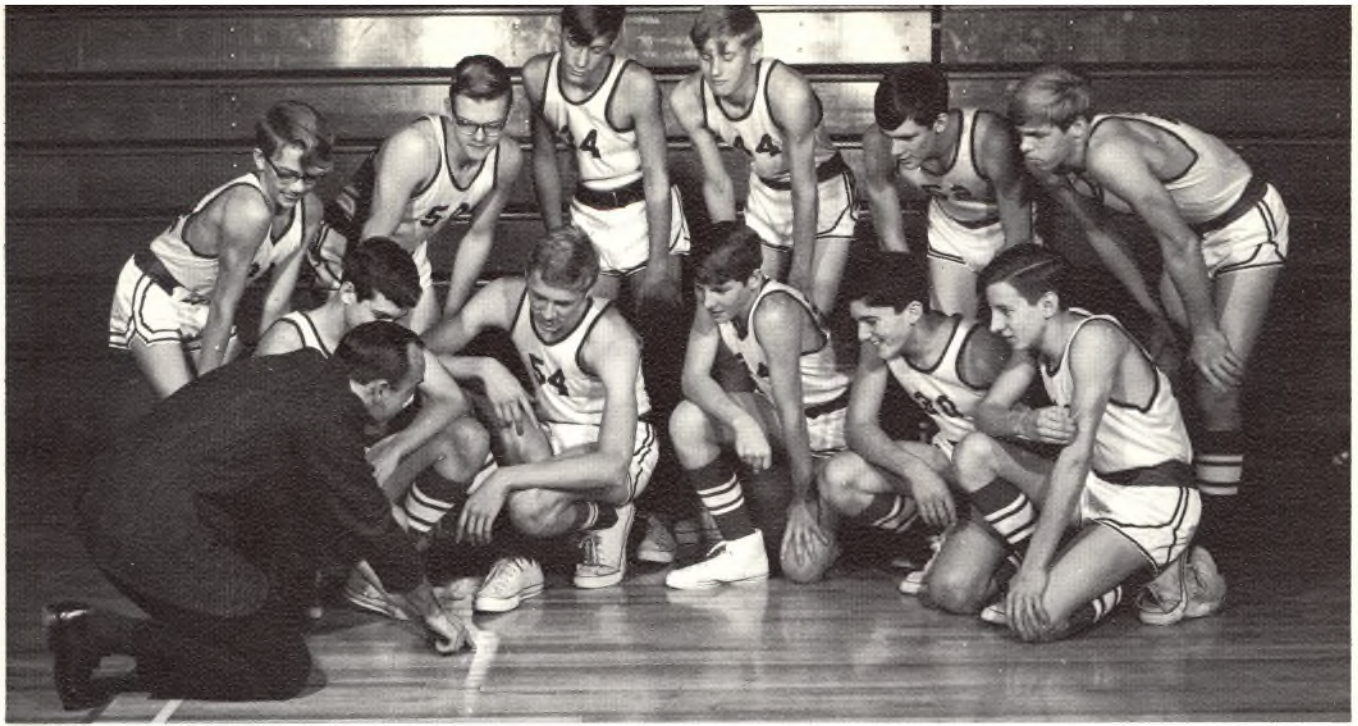

Sophs Capture Championship Trophy

This year the frosh-soph basketball team turned its many potentials into a successful season. Under the disciplined instructions of Mr. Greenfield, the team concentrated on a tight man-to-man defense and a fast-break offense. With the use of our new gym for both practice sessions and home games, the boys ended their season with sixteen wins and one loss. This excellent record gained them first place in the Private School League for the third straight year. Much of the team's success was due to their hard work during practice and their teamwork displayed in their games. This hard work paid off when three members were chosen to be on the varsity team for the PSL Tournament.

Cheerleaders Excite

When not in action at a basketball game, both varsity and frosh-soph cheerleaders spent hours of hard work practicing under the supervision of their sponsor, Mrs. Provinse. With new uniforms to spark the varsity squad, and spirited spectators to shout along with all the cheerleaders, much enthusiasm was generated throughout the entire basketball season. Pep rallies were organized during which pep talks were given by coaches and team members. At these, the cheerleaders made appearances not only as outer space cheerleaders from the year 2004 A.D., but also as hillbilly cheerleaders for the Skunk Holler Polecats team. A play by play account of the games could be seen by the cheerleaders' looks of anticipation, anxiety, defeat and triumph. Besides carrying out their task of cheering, the girls presented the flag at each game and performed a routine during the school song.

Freshmen Triumph in League and Tourney

Composed of thirteen players, the freshman basketball team combined determination and hard work and were rewarded with a successful season. The team, playing for the first year under their new coach Mr. Milkamp, tied for the first place position in the Christian School League. At the end of the season, they entered a tournament with various area private schools. After easily defeating their first opponent, the team fought hard in the semi-final game and then defeated Luther North after three overtimes to capture the championship.

Girls Grapple in Last League Games

The girls' frosh-soph and varsity basketball teams participated in interscholastic sports for the last time this year. Because Timothy has become a member of the Illinois High School Association, girls sports between schools will have to be eliminated for future years. This change did not affect the spirit and the effort produced by the teams this year, however. Each member did her part, whether first or second string, senior or freshman. As in previous years, the varsity team took part in the annual Amateur Athletic Union tournament during Christmas vacation. Although bolstered by freshman and sophomore additions to the team, they did not manage to place in the finals. The girls gave up a good share of their spare time to team practices after school and especially during the Christmas holidays. Coached by physical education instructor Mrs. Provinse, they proudly completed the last season of girls' basketball at Timothy.

Runners Require Speed and Stamina

Cross-country is a grueling sport which tests the endurance of an athlete. Many boys ran cross-country because it was an excellent training for some of the sports which come up later in the year. After weeks of diligent practice by our team, the meets began. The squad ran eight meets in all kinds of weather and finished the season with a 4-4 league record. In the Private School League tournament, seven squads participated. This meet, the final one of the year, was the most important. Our team came in fourth, achieving a place standing in the league.

Track Team Sets New Records

Combining a number of returning lettermen with the inexperienced underclassmen made a successful year for the track team. They fared well at the indoor track meets which were held at the University of Chicago's fieldhouse. This was the first time these early season meets were conducted. Another highlight of the season was the Wooden Shoe Meet which was held between the three Christian high schools. At this meet the team had an opportunity to win back the traveling trophy which Illiana had held for two successive years.

Hits and Homeruns

Spell Success

In order to develop a power-packed baseball team this year, Coach Bilthuis stressed defense and desire. "Iron Mike," the new electric pitching machine, and the spacious gymnasium helped to develop the swing and stance of individual players. It also helped to provide for winter practice sessions. With many experienced players returning and some promising rookies joining the team, optimistic hopes for a successful season were bound to come true.

Team Prepares for Court Competition

Putting forth a lot of time and effort, several energetic boys tried out to represent Timothy on the tennis courts this year. The tennis team completed a busy season of fourteen games both home and away. They also entered the Private School League Tournament. The team's schedule was hampered early in the season when coach Mepyans was hospitalized and out of action for four weeks. But determination and patience helped the team to achieve much experience and progress.

Field hockey demanded not only speed and skill, but also stamina.

Girls Enter Hockey Competition

Included in the girls' sports activities at Timothy this year was the fall field hockey team. A group of twenty-eight energetic girls practiced after school under the instruction of Mrs. Provinse. Armed with hockey sticks and ankle guards, the girls prepared for their short season. Since no league exists, only three games were played, resulting in one victory for our team.

Golfers Tee Off

Last season the golf team had the best record in its six year history and the boys strived to do as well this year. Composed of four returning members, the team was coached by Mr. Milkamp in practice sessions; each member was responsible for improving his own individual game. All the home matches as well as the Private School League Tournament were held at the White Pines Country Club in Bensonville. Our team had the honor of hosting the P.S.L. golf tournament this year.

Competitive Sports

Involve Everyone

Intramurals are activities all students look forward to since all students may participate. Competition among fellow classmates and opportunity for fun was reason enough to join the various games. Fall intramurals introduced football to boys seeking rough fun and rugged competition. After all interested boys had signed up, teams were formed and captains were chosen; the boys were then ready for action. Bowling highlighted girls' intramurals this year. Six organized teams filled the bowling alleys once a week for six weeks. An award was presented by the G.A.A. for the championship team. All students were given the chance to participate in spring intramurals which offered exciting volleyball competition.

To be a good bowler on the girls' team, you had to know how to keep accurate scores.

"Accidental" tackles were the most fun for the boys who played touch football.

Council Co-ordinates Student Activities

SENATE: Seated: Mr. Nawyn, Miss Kingma, Mr. Den Besten, Mr. Hoving. Standing: J. Vander Kamp, T. Becvar, R. Oldenburger, C. Van Reken.

The Student Council was one of the most active organizations in school this year. A boy and girl representative were elected from each homeroom. Under the leadership of Tom Becvar, these students met every Tuesday for a twenty-minute meeting. One of the two areas of school life which the Student Council influenced was the planning and execution of activities for the whole student body. All-school parties, a bonfire, homecoming, career day, and many other activities were sponsored by Student Council. The other function of the Student Council was as the pipeline between the students and the administration. Many decisions of the administration were based on suggestions from Student Council. Many members worked on committees such as the tardy committee to count tardies and discipline students, the chapel committee to "fill the pulpit," and a ring committee which worked with some faculty members in choosing a school ring to replace individual class rings. The Student Council once again gave out three hundred dollars in scholarships to a deserving boy and girl.

Academic Excellence Honored

As an incentive for continued scholastic achievement through excellence in grades, the National Honor Society encouraged all sophomores, juniors, and seniors to maintain at least a B average in their academic subjects. Any student attaining this, automatically became a member and any hard-working senior who kept this B average throughout his entire four years of high school was rewarded with the privilege of wearing a gold tassel on his graduation cap. This year, besides these honors, six members of the senior class were honored by the National Merit Scholarship Foundation with letters of commendation given on the basis of their high scores on the National Merit Scholarship Tests. These seniors along with all members of the honor society have worked diligently and carefully to attain these honors and earn the respect awarded them.

Trumpeter Cal Tameling performs a solo at the fall concert

Band Provides Musical Experiences

Walking past Room 66 at eight o'clock each morning, one could hear the warming-up sounds of fifty-five instruments. All this noise, however, became harmonious and exciting music under the direction of Mr. Mitchel. "Say It with Music" opened the Concert Band's first combined appearance with the choir; besides the numbers with the choir, the band performed several solo selections. Senior band members were invited to attend Midwest Band Clinic during December; here they heard outstanding high school bands perform. The second Timothy concert, given in March, displayed the band's new uniforms; navy blue tux-style, they are trimmed with red and white stripes on the pants and accented by black bow ties. Adding high marching hats and a white overlay announcing the school name and symbol, the band was a striking performer in the Elmburst Memorial Day Parade. The success of the fall concert encouraged the band and choir to combine for a final concert in the spring.

Classical and Modern Music Challenge

The blending of fifty-eight voices praising God best described Timothy's A Cappella Choir; under Mr. Wolterstorff's direction they accomplished an exciting and memorable year. For the first concert, the choir combined its talent with those of the band; the results produced proud parents and two pleased directors. A select group of choir members participated in a Dutch Day Pageant at the Museum of Science and Industry, performing the story of Black Peter and Sinta Klaus on the night before Christmas. After presenting a Palm Sunday Program, the choir began preparing for its trip to the Midwest Choir Festival at Calvin College. This trip was not only educational but also proved to be full of fun for everyone. An often forgotten aspect of the choir's program was its performances in the tri-weekly chapel services. The choir also sang at hymnsings and church services making this an active and inspiring year for its members.

A duet by Linda De Boer and Mr. Wolterstorff added to the variety of the fall concert.

Trumpet Heralds

School Events

Meeting a new deadline each month, the Trumpet staff presented an accurate survey of current school activities. Each issue contained the news around school, editorials and letters, special features, and sports news. The sponsors and editor each month chose a student whom they felt deserved the distinction of Outstanding Trojan and honored him in that issue of the Trumpet. Various opinion polls were also presented in the paper. One such poll revealed the desire for a driver's education course at Timothy and gave many of the students' views on teenage drivers. Having a student print the paper this year at little expense to the Trumpet enabled the staff to expand it from a three to a four-column size and thus include more pictures and special features.

Create Saga

The production and presentation of the 1967 Saga was guided by the faculty advisor, Miss Bean, the editor Carol Slager, and the lay-out editor, Virginia Stob. Two staffs working very close together were the photography staff which captured the events of this school year through pictures and the copy staff which re-enacted these events through words. The aim of these staffs was to help the reader not only to see what is on the pages, but to feel the spirit of Timothy that cannot be depicted or described. The business staff went from door-to-door and store-to-store to raise money through advertisements for the yearbook. They contacted many local businessmen who, through their patronage, helped pay for our yearbook. Much time was spent by the typing staff in perfecting the copy to the rigid specifications set. All members of the various staffs put forth much effort to produce the Saga as an accurate, authentic, and realistic profile of school year 1967.

Aides Give Library Needed Assistance

"Just give me any old chemistry article to read" was one of the requests often frantically asked of our hardworking library aides. They capably handled many emergencies by showing the students how and where to find those urgently needed materials for special assignments. They were also helpful to students by obtaining needed reference magazines from the periodical shelves. The aides discovered they were essential to the efficiency of the library after a brief "trainee course" from Miss Bean. By checking out and returning books to the shelves they saved the librarian much valuable time.

Boys Volunteer Aid

This year the Projection Club again competently handed the showing of films and slides in classes and special assemblies. At their only meeting, the members elected their president, Albert Diepstra. The inexperienced members were taught the tricks of the trade by the senior members. When a teacher wanted to show a film, he merely signed up for the hour in which he needed a projectionist. The sponsor, Dr. Rude, gave these requests to the president, who assigned members who had study halls. In this way no member missed any classes and no class missed any films.

Students Explore Future Careers

Under the leadership of Dr. Rude and their president, Jim Decker, the Future Teachers Club provided many teaching-bound Trojans with the opportunity to exchange ideas and accumulate new ones. One highlight of the year's activities was the potluck dinner where our members joined the clubs of two area high schools, York and Immaculate Conception. At regular meetings, movies, guest speakers and discussions helped these students to make later decisions.

Under the supervision of Mr. Alsum and Mrs. Wiezensee, our school nurse, the Future Nurses Club became engulfed in activities. Meeting twice a month, the girls went on field trips to area hospitals and enjoyed movies and refreshments at their home meetings. Points were given to any aspiring future nurse who participated in the activities of the club and awards for the most points were given at their picnic in the spring.

Career-minded junior and senior girls joined the Commercial Club to familiarize themselves with the business world and to obtain a better idea of what constitutes a good job. At the monthly meetings problems and opportunities of the secretarial field were discussed. Speakers and films were also often featured; at one meeting a representative from the Mosier Secretarial School discussed various careers with the club members. A field trip to a business college highlighted this year's program.

Striving to accommodate the interests of sports minded girls, the Girls Athletic Association sponsored interesting and challenging athletic events. The biggest job of the G.A.A. board, comprised of homeroom representatives and officers, was to sponsor various spring intramurals. The girls seemed to enjoy the bowling and volleyball intramurals the most as large numbers participated. During the winter the club sponsored a splash party at which the girls seemed to forget the cold weather and concentrated on splashing cold water on warm friendships.

Entertainment Sparks School Spirit

Thirteen coordinated and enthusiastic girls made up this year's pompon squad. Composed of girls from each grade level, the squad provided halftime entertainment at all Timothy's home basketball games. Under the direction of Mrs. Provinse, they spent many lunch and after school hours practicing for their performances. Many of the long practice sessions were spent in thinking up new and unusual formations paced to music on records. Timothy's pompon squad was unique since no other school in the P.S.L. had such a performing group.

A booming drum and a trumpet "fight" call added much of the vibrating excitement to our basketball games. Consisting of approximately fifteen volunteers, the Pep Band under the direction of Mr. Mitchell played such Timothy favorites as "Sweet Georgia Brown," "Java," and "Night Train." As the flag was presented, they accompanied the audience in the singing of the national anthem. Participation in pep rallies was another means through which the band instilled school pride and spirit into every student and spectator.

Pep and Prose Stimulate Students

Promoting school spirit occupied the time of forty spirited girls who devoted after school hours to this task. Sponsored by Miss Kingma, the Pep Club held meetings to create witty sayings for posters and designs for the big "T" through which the basketball team made their impressive entrances. In order to encourage more fans to attend basketball games, the club provided spectator buses. Money for poster supplies was raised through the sale of Timothy pennants and rah-rahs. Without the work of this club, the varied phases of our competitive sports program would have had limited recognition and prominence from the student body.

Many students enjoy reading a good book and discussing it with others; Lit Club was formed to give students an opportunity to express their opinions. Meeting informally on Saturday nights over pop and potato chips, members found Lit Club both interesting and stimulating. Under the leadership of Mr. Harkema and Mr. Hoekstra, discussions were held on selections such as The Morning Watch by James Agee and Nine Stories by J. D. Salinger.

Reorganized Clubs Become Active

The newly revived Letterman's Club, whose membership consists of boys holding minor and major letters, proved to be one of the most dynamic organizations within Timothy. The club was off and running when it sponsored the senior-faculty game. The proceeds were used to finance the pop, popcorn, pencils, and programs sold at each home basketball game. The purchase of a $250 popcorn machine proved to be a profitable means of increasing funds. The club hoped to buy a whirlpool bath and other sports equipment for Timothy's athletic teams.

The Camera Club was reorganized this year; under the guidance of Mr. Mepyans and Mr. Alsum, the Club drew up a constitution besides electing officers. The members took field trips to the loop to obtain individual picture taking experience; a visit to the Photography Show in Chicago enabled them to view the latest equipment and techniques. With the addition of new equipment to the already well equipped darkroom, the club helped train members for future work with the school publications. Many of the members participated in the production of this year's Saga.

*I shall pass this way
 but once,
 Therefore any good thing
 I can do,
 Any kindness I can show
 to any human being,
 Let me do it now.
 Let me not defer it nor neglect it, for
 I shall not pass this way again.

The end of a book . . . the end of a school year . . . and the end of much more than this for the Class of 1967. Although we do not live in the past, but for the present and into the future, yet it is well that we have a sketch of what is done—a sketch to come back to when looking for a basis for new friendships and new experiences, or when feeling a sense of nostalgia.

For helping us record these profiles of our year '66-'67 we would like to give special thanks to Miss Bean, our patient adviser, Mr. Mepyans, our courageous photography adviser, and Mr. Vander Woude our punctual business adviser. Also we wish to thank Edmond Photographers for their part in this book, and Mr. Mitchell of Walsworth Publishing Co. who always managed to smile even when we didn't meet our deadlines.
