Timothy Christian High School

Elmhurst, Illinois

Each student brings to Timothy his own special talents, and together everyone contributes to the whole Timothy picture. Like the colors in a painting - some bold, some bright, others subdued, some at first glance almost insignificant yet each stroke, each color blending together to form a beautiful picture - students at Timothy contribute their own thinking and talents to make Timothy complete.

*There's you and you and you and you
And he and she and I.*

*We are all our own person
But there's something which binds us together.
We are individuals —
But we are one.*

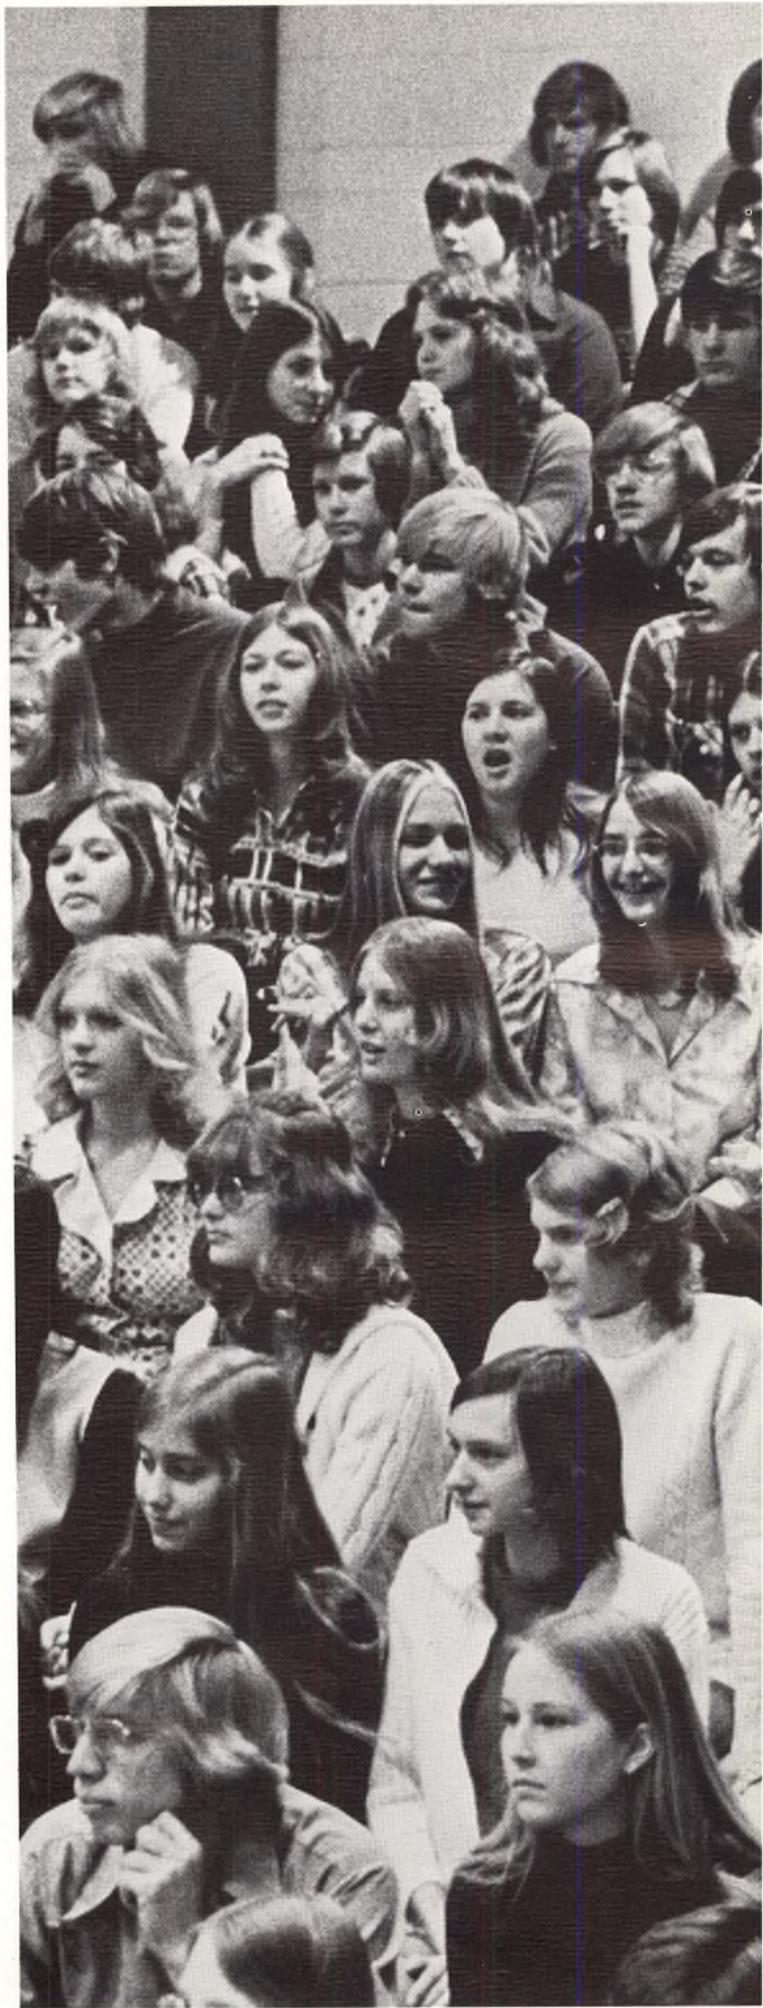

*Each of us has a special place,
A special talent or a special job -
Separate but together,
An individual but a part of a unified body.*

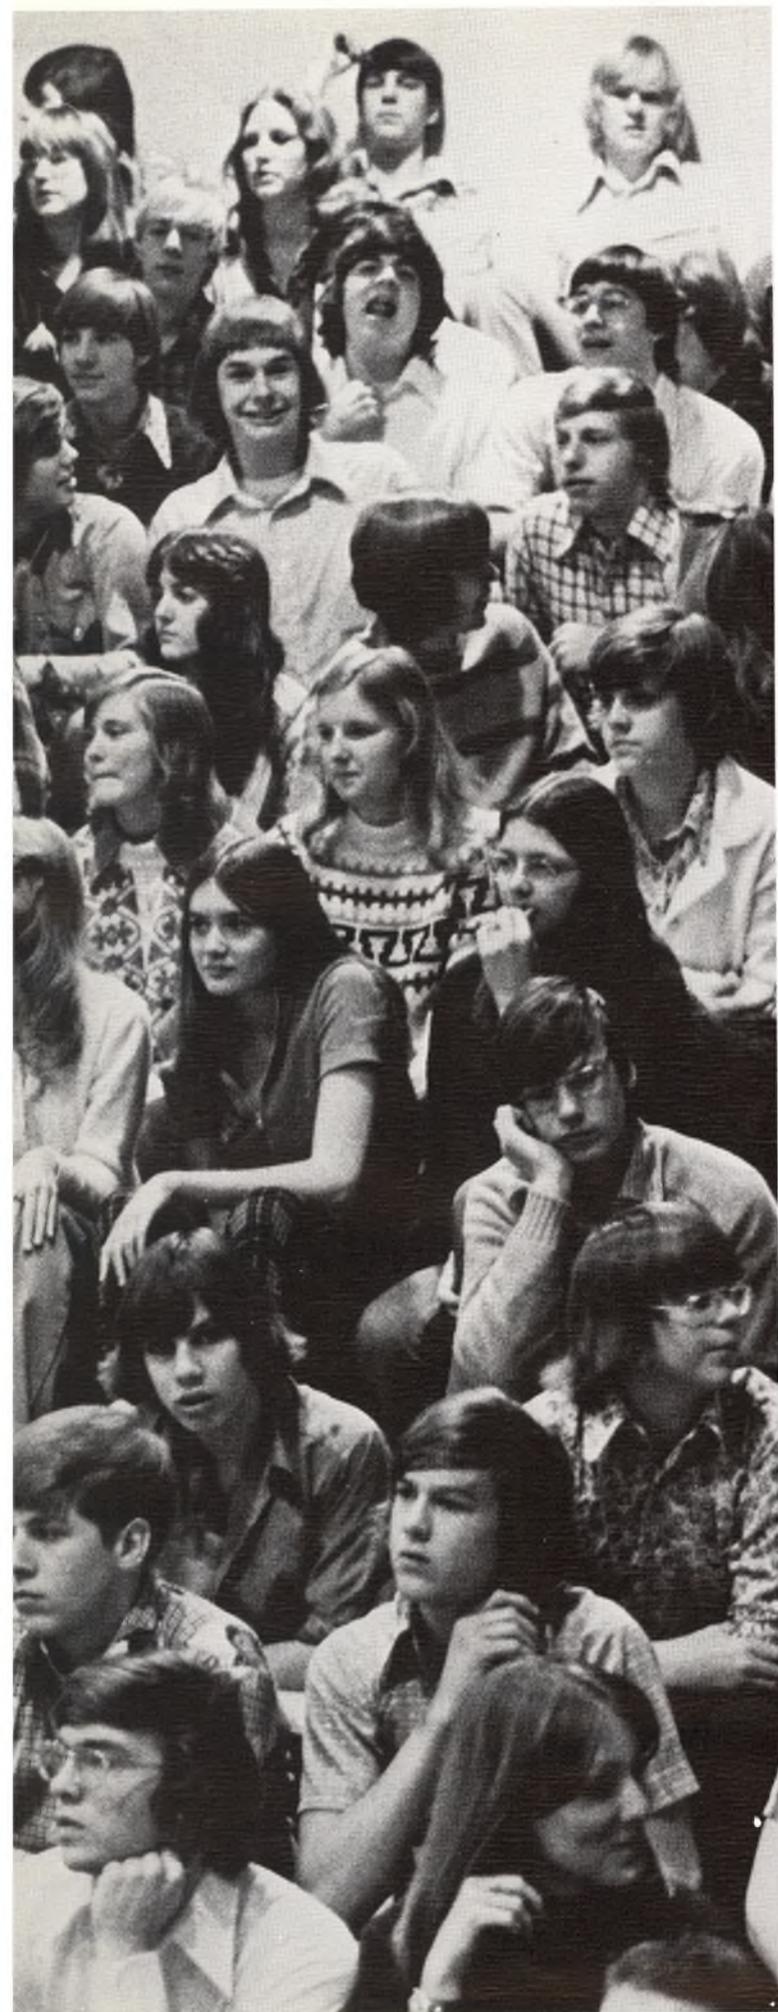

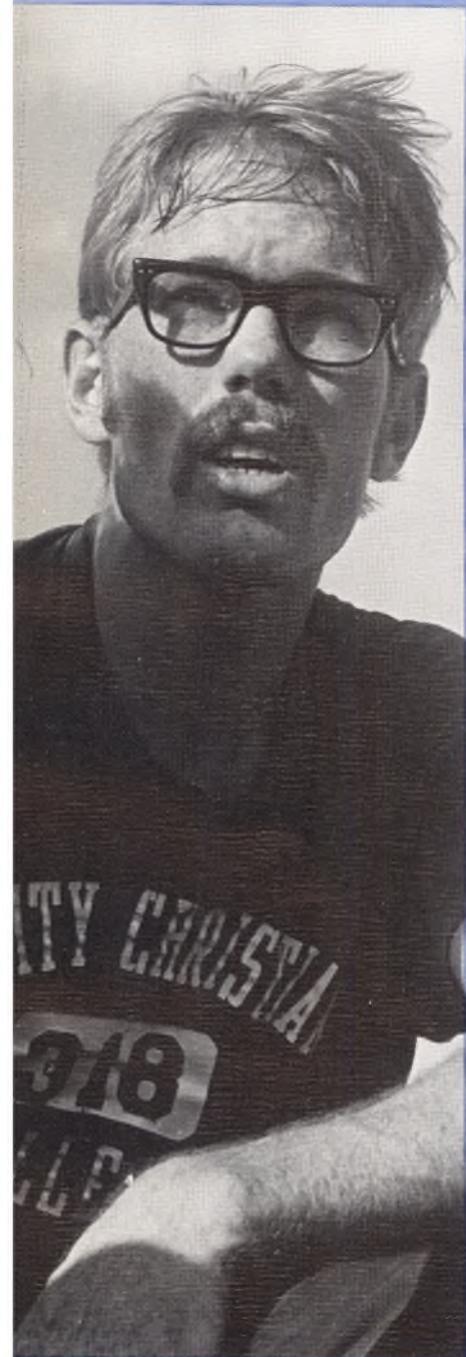

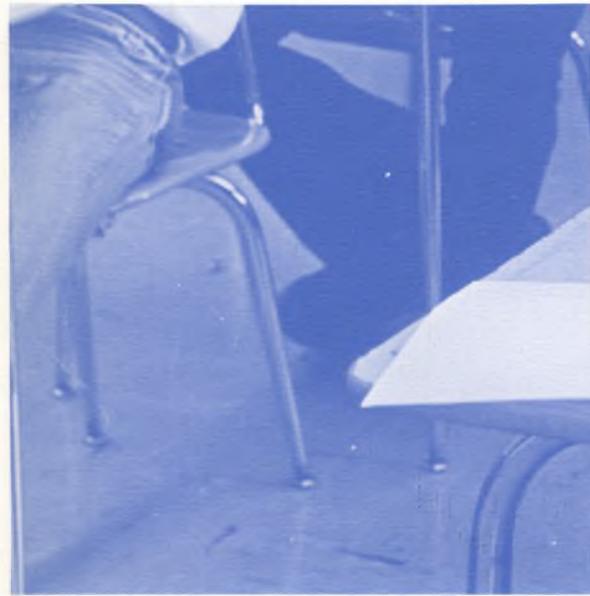

*What draws us together?
A special love and a need for one another.*

Yes, you and I can plainly see That the words you and I Always make we.

Christian Ethics Stressed

Bible I students studied the creation and its different theories. Following the covenant through the Old Testament, they learned about the judges, prophets, and kings of the Israelites. The sophomores used the book Who Says, which discusses a variety of questions about God, the Bible, and the Christian faith.

Church history classes observed the growth of the Christian Church, with emphasis on the Reformation. Each student did a term paper on the history and distinctive principles of his own denomination. One of the senior Bible classes, religions, looked at major religions and cults such as the Hare Krishnas. Covered in the ethics classes were such current issues as abortion and capital punishment.

Rev. Reitsma finds all kinds of things in his ever-present black brief-case.

But you didn't tell us this would be on the test.

In ethics class, Rev. Reitsma gives guidelines from the Bible to use in our daily Christian lives.

Oh, we have an assignment to turn in today?

Sprechen Sie Deutsch? Minime, Dico Latine

First year Latin students translated Latin cartoon and plays, and played Scrabble using Latin words after memorizing basic grammar. Sophomores learned more grammar and also translated the New Testament book of John. The junior and senior Latin "scholars" translated readings and read literature in English by Roman authors.

Freshmen taking German learned the grammar and vocabulary needed for conversation, elementary reading, and writing. To help them, they listened to tapes through headphones. Those in second year German increased their listening and speaking skills. The play "Biederman und die Brandstifter" by Max Frisch was studied by third and fourth year German students.

Planets are Studied

The biology classes used more than their textbooks in their studies. While learning about the body and its systems, they dissected a worm and a frog. They examined the different species of plants and animals and went bird-watching. The students in physical science studied and experimented with motors, generators, electricity, and telephones. Those taking chemistry learned about atoms and their construction and about molecules. Using experiments, they discovered many things about chemical reactions. Juniors and seniors in physics looked at planets and their movements, atoms, motion, and electricity. They also studied air waves, water waves, and light waves.

Neither of them being the least bit squeamish, Keith Berkhum and Carol Kooima eagerly dig into their frog on dissection day.

Look! A long-haired, sunglassed, well dressed, binoculared, birdwatching biology class.

Sophomores discover the exciting work of microbes.

"What more can I say?"

Just think girls, that could have been your lucky prince.

Students Tackle Math

Freshman algebra students studied the real number system, worked with the properties of addition and multiplication and worked with polynomials. Geometry brings back memories of proofs, using postulates and theorems. Students found a lot of use for their compasses while they worked with angles and triangles. The junior algebra classes solved different kinds of equations and inequalities and worked with linear functions and relations. Mazes, string designs, and mobiles were just some of the things made for the algebra project. Advanced math, usually taken by college-bound students interested in math-related courses, dealt with trigonometry and calculus.

Business Skills Displayed

Students learned basic skills in personal typing and practiced forms for letters and reports. In the second year of business typing, students increased their speed. They also learned how to do specialized forms which are used in a business office. Shorthand students typed from their notes and learned correct forms for reports and letters. Bookkeeping involved learning how to keep the financial records of a business. Students also were taught about bank reconciliations, income tax, and keeping a checkbook.

Typing class teaches Deb Swierenga that no matter how fast you type you can always go faster.

Carol Tammeling attempts to explain transactional analysis in psych class, with Diane Davids ready to answer any questions that might arise.

All eyes on the photographer—world history can wait (right, Ms. Jabaay?).

Ms. Jabaay answers Debbie Dykhuizen's questions in world history class.

Bill Hoving and Randy Van Dahm discuss everything in U.S. History class, everything except of course U.S. History.

Social Studies Emphasizes Awareness

Government class strongly emphasized that students should be aware of what is happening. Newsweek magazine was a major source of keeping them in touch with the world. Sociology and psychology dealt with how we should respond to the needs of others. Marriage and alcoholism were used as topics for open discussion. Economics and a new class, economic history, tried to determine who should get what in today's society. Debate centered on Marxism, capitalism and socialism. Freshman students conditioned themselves to taking many notes during the one-semester world history class. As one project in U.S. history, juniors were challenged to learn the placement of each state along with the name of its capital; frequent map quizzes checked their progress.

Economics students discover that it isn't always so easy to keep your mind on the gross national product.

A suddenly placid Ken Folkerts seems to have said something to arouse the class's attention.

At least for the moment, Tony doesn't seem to be happy about the speech he is giving in government.

Their panel brings out the best in these seniors.

Ben Hoekstra stimulates his fellow English lit classmates with his pantomime from "The Canterbury Tales."

In a lavish English lit class production, Jack and Chuck portrayed every detail of "The Story of the Widow's Son," dead chicken and all.

Donna and Dave act out a scene from "Our Town" while others follow along in American lit class.

Freshmen get first-hand experience as teachers.

Literature Reviewed

The freshmen covered a variety of subjects. They studied three novels, grammar, short stories, and had experience in drama and writing. Freshmen speech students fought to overcome stage fright as they prepared for their speeches. American literature classes read and studied the writings of different American authors. They also learned the correct way to do a term paper and then they put their knowledge into practice by writing about a career. The juniors could choose from nine-week and one-semester courses grammar, literature, writing, drama, debate, and speech. Seniors studied various types of literature from different periods in English history. Along with four novels, they examined a sixteenth-century play, some ballads, poetry, and short stories.

Practical Arts Learned

Beginning home ec students learned the basics of cooking; various concoctions were created and proved edible. The sewing machines were put to use and the girls modeled their finished products at the "Spring Carrousel." Advanced students studied family living; a day-care center was set up to provide experience with pre-schoolers.

Mech draw developed skill in the use of drawing instruments. Students were allowed to advance at their own rate while working with architectural scales and geometric constructions. In architectural design, upperclassmen designed a house plan and then actually built a scale model of their plan.

Preparing themselves to be busy homemakers, these girls combine mending with chatting.

But Ms. Aardema, this material just isn't big enough to make a long dress.

Better measure it precisely, Mr. Hoving is watching.

Armed with a scissors and a lot of patience, Sharon and Ruth begin hemming a garment.

Art Offers Variety

Art I and Art II students were able to express themselves in various ways throughout the year. First semester emphasized sketching and ink drawings. A field trip to Morton Arboretum was planned; what wasn't planned, was the rain that was encountered that day. Second semester was mainly used as an independent study. Students worked on macrame, ceramics, paintings, and chalk drawings. Another field trip was taken to the Art Institute, followed by a time where students could sketch freely while in the Loop.

Designing a shadow mural provides a unique challenge.

The Sounds of Music

The music appreciation classes listened to music from the Middle Ages to the present, trying to see how music was influenced by the conditions in the world at different times. The freshman chorus sang in two concerts and also spent some time learning basic music theory. Girl's Glee was a new group which also had a part in the concerts. Along with its regular concerts, the choir sang on the Sunday Evening Club on channel 11 and for the fourth year received a number one rating at the IHSA music festival. Their exciting musical presentation "Celebrate Life" was "an experience rather than a performance." The band also participated in the IHSA music festival and was rated number two. Among their activities were a combined concert here with Grandville and marching in the Elmhurst Memorial Day Parade.

Freshman music appreciation students find that just listening to music isn't so easy when test time comes.

Ken Vander Ploeg swoons to the melody of Dvorak's "New World Symphony."

Members of the king's court sway and sing much to the delight of the captive audience.

C'mon girls, can't you show a little more enthusiasm?

Co-ed P.E. Held

P.E. took on a new aspect this year as for the first time co-ed gym classes were held. Getting used to the idea took some time but for the most part, it was a success. All-guy and all-girl classes were also held. Ms. Aardema and Mr. Greenfield attempted to add variety to the classes by getting the students involved in several different sports. Volleyball and basketball allowed students to work together, and in track and tennis individual skills were continually built up.

Dave Yntema struggles through calisthenics in gym class.

Paul Shuart has second thoughts about rope-climbing after looking down and realizing how high up he actually is.

A photographically deformed Gordon Vander Ark skins the cat.

Nancy demonstrates the concentration required to walk the balance beam.

S.C. Plans Student Activities

Equal representation of the sexes was evident as seven girls and seven guys were elected Student Council members. S.C. got underway this year headed by a new sponsor, Mr. Hoving. Their first major project was to plan the traditional all-school party. Each senior was assigned a freshman for the day, and afterwards games and tug-of-wars were played outdoors. Supper and entertainment followed. The annual work-day was held and students transferred their energies from books to car-washing and babysitting. On a chilly December afternoon school was dismissed early and students loaded busses to head for either an ice skating or a bowling outing. The year concluded with the Awards Banquet and the election of Wally Loerop as new S.C. president.

Eight well-deserving freshman kangaroo court subjects anxiously await pronouncement of sentence.

Homecoming is Revived

During the early months of the school year, much discussion was centered on the question "Will homecoming be revived this year?" It was finally decided that there would be a homecoming, with class officers and student council members sharing in the preparations. Representatives from each class were nominated by their classmates. Another vote was taken after an assembly was held; where students heard who the girls would choose to be if they could be anyone at all. Answers ranged from Joan of Arc to one of Christ's disciples.

On December 21 at the halftime of the Timothy/Elmwood Park game, the court, consisting of Lynn Zeilstra

- freshman, Barb Pleiter - sophomore, Connie Bilthouse and Wendy Vander Leest - juniors and Mary Lou Bolt, Mary Essenburg, and Doreen Schipma - seniors, was escorted to the center of the gym. There S.C. Vice-President Rick Yntema presented to us the new 74-75 queen - Mary Essenburg. Former 72-73 Queen Debi Post crowned Mary who stepped forward to express words of surprise and gratitude. Mary and her court were then escorted to the decorated stage where they reigned over the second half of the game. After the Trojans beat Elmwood Park, a reception was held in room 10 for all parents, students and alumni of Timothy.

While the court poses for photographers on stage, escorts Bob Erikson and Doug Mulder relax in Room 10.

Our newly crowned queen doesn't seem to mind the fact that her throne isn't exactly tailor made for her.

The court sits down to relax and watch the second half of the basketball game.

Members of the court and M.C. Rich Yntema rehearse the ceremony with the help of Ms. Vander Veer's instructions.

SAGA Staff Survives Monday Nights

PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR - Judy Vos, EDITOR - Lynn Dwarshuis

For tradition's sake, the SAGA staff decided to again devote Monday afternoons to tedious planning for the yearbook. Theme and cover designs were the topics of much heated discussion. The staff survived the late meetings by breaking for a whopper and a coke. Considerable time was spent prodding the photographers to take pictures and begging the writers to write their assigned articles. With ads in, articles proofed, layouts drawn, and pictures cropped, the staff began to realize that the once insurmountable task was finally being tackled.

Trumpet Meets Deadlines

Under a co-editorship the Trumpet came out six times, filled with news from around school. One issue featured Fine Arts poetry, and the last Trumpet was devoted to the seniors. On layout night while the staff was busy trying to piece the paper together and the typists were frantically typing last minute articles, Ms. Vander Veer was around re-reading articles and giving advice. Amidst the pile of work the staff found time for a hamburger or an occasional pizza. Part of the Trumpet staff went to visit the CBS television station where they saw how the newsroom gets its news ready for broadcast.

Drama Stirs Audience

Considering the rapidly changing economy, the drama department decided to put on a spring play emphasizing that things are "Cheaper by the Dozen." The play was a funny but also sad drama about Mr. Gilbreth and his twelve children. Mr. Gilbreth always tried to find a quicker way of doing things and he constantly pushed his children to excel in school. The older girls felt pressured by his old-fashioned ways and they tried to bring their father up-to-date. The end of the play was a real tear-jerker as Mr. Gilbreth had to go away and the audience knew he was going to die. Even though many practices were missed because of the advancement of our team in the state basketball tournament, the cast did an excellent job in presenting the play.

Bottom row: R. Vos, B. Mallek, K. Folkerts, V. Zeilstra. Second: G. Groenewold, C. Slinkman, L. Muhlena - student director, D. Schipma, G. Dykstra, Mr. Day - director. Third: N. Walker, K. Woldman, A. De Boer, B. Bollow, A. Shuart.

Students Portray Difficult Roles

Shortly after school began, the fall play took shape under the direction of Mr. Day. Flowers for Algernon is about Charlie Gordon, a mentally retarded young man who has an operation performed on his brain, transforming him into a genius. As the play continues, Charlie slowly regresses and in the end finds himself in the state he started.

The rehearsals were hectic and it seemed that the play would never be ready to perform on October 24 and 25. The cast members found it difficult to become the people they were portraying, especially the members with double and triple roles. After some long, hard rehearsals, however, the actors seemed to have found themselves and Flowers for Algernon turned out to be a very fine play.

At a party, Charlie amazes those present.

The cast receives last minute criticism from Mr. Day in one of the late night dress rehearsals.

Choir Gains Recognition

Off to a slow start because many of its members had graduated, the choir progressed under the leadership of Mr. Wolterstorff and had some fine concerts to prove this. Besides presenting the usual Christmas and Easter concerts, the choir performed a musical drama entitled "Celebrate Life." It dealt with the life of Christ, beginning with the prophecies of Isaiah.

Again the choir was involved in the IHSA choir districts. By singing some selections from the Easter concert, they were able once again to receive a superior rating.

Director and accompanist exit immediately following the finale of the performance.

Thorough voice warmups preceded the rehearsals of "Celebrate Life."

All eyes are focused on Mr. Wolterstorff as the choir presents "Celebrate Life."

Mr. Wolterstorff conducts the choir through the exuberant proclamation that "He is Alive!"

Talents Displayed

This year Mr. Fitchuk encouraged students to participate in pep band. Giving up their noon hours to practice resulted in fine performances before the varsity b-ball games. Stage band was also re-organized, differing from pep band in that it played jazz, whereas pep band played popular hits.

Girls' Glee was a new organization formed this year, consisting of about twenty girls. Under Mr. Wolterstorff's direction, they performed with the choir at concerts and gave "The Emperors New Clothes" at the Spring Carrousel. Freshman chorus enabled students to see what choir might be like in their following years.

Combined Concert Highlights Band Season

In its second year under the direction of Mr. Fitchuk, the band gave four concerts and marched in the Elmhurst Memorial Day Parade. The highlight of the year was the spring concert when Calvin Christian High School from Grandville, Michigan, joined our band for a combined concert. Finding adequate housing proved to be a difficult task but eventually everyone was placed comfortably.

The band went to the IHSA districts and received a II rating. Two of the members made the district band and some ensembles participated. The annual candy sale was held to raise money for new instruments and equipment. During the winter months, a student director from Elmhurst College provided leadership and inspiration.

Where's my uniform, this one is six sizes too big!

Boards Sponsor Activities

Girls' Board started out their year with a spaghetti supper, full of food and fun. At the "Spring Carrousel," this year's mother-daughter event, the girls modeled their hand made clothes and Girls Glee presented

"The Emperor's New Clothes."

Every Wednesday after school, GAA tried hard to provide sports that would satisfy the majority of the girls. They also sponsored horseback riding in the fall and a co-ed ski trip.

You try the homemade spaghetti first, and if you survive, I'll take some.

Ellen, what are you doing to that chicken?

Fine Arts Active

FA was busy again this year. They tried to keep up the traditional weekly bike'n breakfast during good weather. They also had their annual soup supper and chicken dinner. The most successful money maker was the plant sale held in the spring. Of course FA's chief interest wasn't money. They tried to bring out as many hidden talents as possible from the students.

"I'm warning you, I'm staying here till you pay me what you owe!"

F.A. Week a Success

The Fine Arts week Indian music assembly featured a performance on the tabla.

Alumna Lois Sternberg returns to Timothy to present a chapel, using creative dance to express her feeling.

After the microphone problems were cleared up, the Indian dancer completed the show, much to our enjoyment.

C.C. Faces Opposition

Gatorade, Pumas, and Adidas were just a few of the signs announcing that CC had begun. The team found itself with a problem - lack of upperclassmen. With two seniors and four juniors on the varsity, sophomores were called on to fill the gaps. The varsity gradually got going and peaked at the end. The most pleasant surprise was the frosh-soph team who went undefeated. They took third at the Warren Invitational and second at Benet. Although they had to send some of their members to the varsity level, they still took second in the PSL finals. Two frosh-soph runners won awards at the finals and two varsity members won medals.

Dave Woldman, Timothy's only 4-year major letterman in cross country, muscles his way through to the finish.

Golfers Tee Off

With the onset of the fall season, eager golfers could be found polishing their clubs. Eight players competed on the varsity level, but there was talent within the entire team. The team took third in the PSL and in the post-season tournament Bob Mallek captured the individual championship. His score plus season bests by Bill Hoving and Mike Heerdt gave the Trojans an apparent second place in the tournament; but some innocent scoring irregularities caused the team to be disqualified.

Tennis Team Faces Wind

For the second year in a row the girls' tennis team proved their equality. They had a five and two record and with that took second place in the league. The team had nine diligent, hard-working girls.

Four new members were added, and along with them a new coach. Ms. Aardema's coaching helped the girls advance in individual skills. There were quite a few tense moments where it depended on one particular single or doubles to pull the team through for another victory, but they always made it - until they played Chicago Christian and Providence. The disagreeable wind was often a factor in matches. The season came to its conclusion with the IHSA tournament. There the girls found themselves competing against pros and, except for Lisa Huizenga, were defeated in the first round.

Girls Volley for Victory

The volleyball team consisted of fourteen girls who were split into two teams. The team had practice four times a week. Practice began with pushups, jumps, and running across the gym. After warming up, some girls practiced bumps, others served, and the rest received serves. Then the girls split into their teams and had a game. This was the first year girls' volleyball was involved in a state tournament. The first district game was against Glenbard North. Even though our team lost, they gave the Glenbard girls a fight.

The team did not win many matches this season, but it was still an interesting and exciting year for its members.

Wrestlers Challenged

The wrestling team got underway with two new additions: new wrestling mats and a new coach, Mr. Oosterhouse. The team, composed mainly of underclassmen, didn't win any meets but had a few good individual performances. Don Swierenga took second place in the Private School League. In IHSA district competition, Doug Mulder took third place, and both Don Swierenga and Ken Folkerts earned a fourth place in their weight classes. One reason for the team's not winning their meets was that many matches had to be forfeited because all weight classes couldn't be filled.

Frosh Tie for First

The freshman basketball team was a reason for pride for parents, coaches, and fans. They finished the season tied for first in the league and had a 13 - 5 overall record. The team played a very successful pressure man-to-man defense and they thrived on their quickness. The team was never really challenged as it always had a small point margin. They played an exciting brand of basketball. The high point of the season was taking first in the CCHS Tournament. A few outstanding players were strongly supported by the rest of the team.

Injuries Hinder Team

The frosh-soph basketball team finished with a 10-11 record, taking third in the PSL league with an 8 - 6 record. Mr. Van Prooyen felt the highlight of the season was their ability to reverse the poor first half season record of 3 - 7 to an improved 7 - 4 in the last half of the season. They were able to do this despite the loss of Randy Dykstra with a broken leg. The strong point of the team was defense; they were able to limit their opposition to less than forty points a game.

Varsity Team Goes Downstate

Although they lost 4 of their first 8 games, the basketball team never gave up. Slowly they jelled into a unified club and went on to win 23 of the last 25 games. They won their holiday invitational and took second in the PSL.

Enthusiasm mounted as tournament time neared. The Trojans captured the regional title and then moved to Somonauk, where they beat Aurora Central and Ottawa Marquette. This victory resulted in sweaty palms as the Trojans had to come from behind in the last minute and a half. The team advanced to the supersectional and then on to Champaign. Excited fans beamed with pride as the Trojans beat Riverdale and Eldorado. When time came for the championship game, the team found itself trapped in the hotel elevator. With only minutes to spare they made it to Assembly Hall; they lost to Venice but walked away with the second place trophy. Trojan fans expressed their feelings by chanting, "We're from Timothy, couldn't be prouder!"

Pom Pons Add Sparkle

The pom pon girls added that special something to the basketball games. They could be counted on to provide the necessary sparkle when the opposition didn't give our team any competition. When the game was tight, they helped the fans relax at half-time.

Practice sessions meant hard work, since eleven of the twelve girls were new on the squad. A routine which was worked out ahead of time by some of the girls, was perfected during rehearsals which were held twice a week. The girls also created their own uniforms. When the time for the performance came, it was sometimes hard to locate someone to play the record, or to find the right song on the record; but somehow each performance came off well.

B-ball Team Tries Hard

The girls never let down their enthusiasm. They were coached by Ms. Aardema; from her instruction the team learned new plays and techniques. The practice sessions started with conditioning which included a few laps around the gym. Next, the girls played a scrimmage game; the team that lost had to run more laps. The girls showed teamwork and enthusiasm, working toward the goal of victory at each game. Unfortunately, their opponents felt the same way and somehow usually overcame our team.

The team receives advice from Coach Aardema during time out.

Pre-game warm-ups occasionally got out of hand, causing a sore head or two.

Ball Team Bounces Back

Coach Evenhouse's team got going this year, ended up with a winning record in the PSL and tied for third place. During spring vacation they took a trip to Tennessee; this gave them a week to practice and get to know each other as team members. The guys showed enthusiasm and never gave up in the tight league race, where every win or loss shook the standings. Two seniors, who led the season last year as juniors, were named for the second year to the all-conference team - Steve Weglarz and Dave Woldman.

J.V.'s Work Together

As most teams do, the baseball team had both its ups and downs. They didn't win many games, but they did give their opponents a hard time. At the start of the season they had some trouble with the fundamentals of the game, but gradually things began to fall in place. Mr. Oosterhouse, as the new coach, tried to get the team together not knowing how any of the guys played. Because there were only three pitchers on the team, they had to work hard to keep their arms in condition.

Track Team Advances

NEW SCHOOL RECORDS

The track team started off the year with the PSL relays. This was followed by the Calvin Christian Invitational, held at Calvin College, where everyone had a good day because of the excellent track and great weather conditions.

At the Wooden Shoe meet, the team lost by only six points. Most of the team members improved their times at each meet. They proudly sent John Vander Kamp downstate after he qualified in the districts.

New Coaches Aid Team

The track team began with about thirty girls and dwindled down to a faithful fifteen. The first and second meets were held at home and the girls came in last. They chalked them up for experience and went to their last meet where they lost again. Districts proved to be the toughest competition the girls had to face. Although no one qualified for places, the girls improved their times markedly. The season ended with the PSL meet, held at Luther North. With Ms. Aardema's illness, Ms. Miedema and Mr. Senti were called on to fill her place. They did a remarkable job of holding the team together.

Champs Go Undefeated

This was a year of many firsts for Timothy's tennis team. Mainly, they won the PSL season and the PSL tournament. This was also the first year for Timothy to claim the #1 singles player in the PSL, Howard Hoff. Bruce Vander Schaaf also went undefeated in the PSL to receive a first as second singles. The team went through its ups and downs but showed a lot of poise under pressure. All the hard work in the past two or three years resulted in a number one team this year. One big plus for the team was that there was not much difference in playing skill between the first man and eighth man.

on what high school life would be like.
But freshman year proved to us that high school life was far from routine.
After we survived freshman initiation, we settled down to studying real numbers, Zeus, and German nouns.
Group study provided us with a time to relax,
play cards, and occasionally do some homework.
The year ended with a picnic held in the rain at Lake Waconda.*

Seniors found time to relax, play cards or do light homework in senior study.

*Our sophomore year was a year of firsts for us.
 Both students and teachers had to adjust to the new modular system.
 Many hours were spent in the library
 as we struggled through our first research papers.
 The girls joined together in a victory cheer when they learned the IHSA permitted them to compete in interscholastic sports.
 As sophomores we had the opportunity and responsibility of beginning our long string of money-raising projects.*

Senior guys ham it up during the morning break.

*Upon entering our senior year, we found ourselves under the leadership of a new President—Gerald Ford.
 Our economy was undergoing some rapid changes and gradually we began to realize that we were part of these happenings.
 Learning to deal with the world around us as Christian adults was emphasized greatly in our final year of high school.
 Ethnocentrism, fillibuster, and proprietorship were just a few of the new terms added to our daily vocabulary.*

Ditch Day . . . Graduation.

Freshman initiation provided us with the opportunity to properly welcome the incoming freshmen. The destruction of the shed and the construction of Prospect were the causes of occasional, but welcomed, class interruptions. Pride overwhelmed us as we watched our Trojans capture second place in the state basketball finals. Ditch day and senior night brought us to the realization that graduation was quickly approaching. We said our farewells, but we'll always be grateful for the love, knowledge and friendship entrusted to us at Timothy.

Outstanding Seniors Chosen

BRUCE VANDER SCHAAF

—a four-year honor society member, president of Student Council, a member of band and choir, a spirited member of the basketball, tennis, and golf teams.

MARY ESSENBURG

—an outstanding honor student, a class officer for four years, a member of band and choir, a charter member of girls' track and volleyball teams, an enthusiastic cheerleader.

LAURI WOLTERS and JAKE GROENEWOLD were given recognition for their high academic achievement, their willingness to work—often behind the scenes, their participation in music and dramatic activities . . . also, Lauri for her many contributions as pianist and Jake for his job as SAGA business manager.

CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR SON ON HIS GRADUATION DAY

Dear Victor,

You have made us proud of you, so this is the least we can say. You have our blessing during your college years; may you have good success. You have given us seventeen years of happiness, but this year is the best.

My son, keep the advice and instructions of your father; he is the best father I have ever known. He has labored and toiled many years for you, my son. Do remember the teachings of your mother and implant this thought upon your mind: I have taught, cried, and prayed daily for the Lord to keep you in these evil days and times.

My son, when you go forth into this world many obstacles will stand in your way. Wherever you go, or whatever you become, don't forget to kneel and pray. When you are climbing the ladder of success, never doubt or be afraid. Remember, at the end of each road there is always a loving God ahead. A wise man will seek, hear, and increase in wisdom and learning. For wisdom is better than silver, and the gain thereof is better than fine gold. A man of understanding shall attain unto wise counsels. So keep on pushing, my son, get a firm grip on life and a very tight hold.

May the Lord bless you richly,
Your Mother and Father
