Timothy Christian High School Elmhurst, Illinois

SAGA '76

Volume XXII

Timothy had the Spirit of '76 in many unique ways, from the school colors of red and white, right down to our bicentennial T-shirts. We celebrated our country's birthday with flags, decorative symbols and with our band playing in the Elmhurst Memorial Day parade.

Each of us helps to make up Timothy; we each contribute to its spirit in our own ways. We express ourselves as we participate in the variety of classes and activities, as each one holds different memories, lessons and meaning to every student and teacher; but there is still a unity of spirit.

Our school's name suggests a major reason for this unity. We come together conscious of the Spirit of God, who is in and moves around us, making Timothy a special place.

In all these ways the Spirit of '76 was evident this year at Timothy and will be for the rest of our lives.

New golfers become old pros

The golfers ended up in fifth place in the P.S.L. standings, with a 3-4 record. In the league meet, held at Cog Hill, the team had a total score of 367, placing seventh. A definite bright spot was exceptional playing by freshman Micah Bosman and sophomore Mike Heerdt, whose scores registered 90 and 89 respectively in the league meet. Also returning for next year are two more letter winners, Jim DeBoer and John Huizenga. Seniors leaving the team are Bill Hoving, Ken Smith, Randy VanDahm and Kevin Witte.

Small pack gains long strides

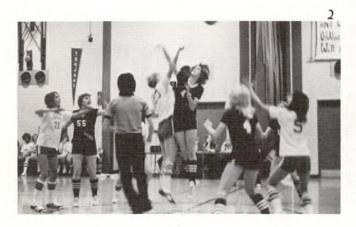

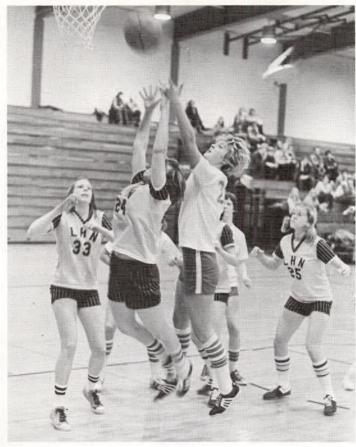

Both frosh-soph and varsity teams finished in second place in the P.S.L. The varsity, starting the season with only eight runners, was forced by injuries to call up frosh-soph runners. For the fourth consecutive year the varsity finished in second place in the P.S.L. The runners attended the Fenton, Warren, DuPage County, and Benet invitationals. The annual Timothy marathon was held in nearly perfect weather and records were set. At the end of the season they traveled to Michigan for the Christian high school invitational at Calvin College. Once the frosh-soph found a consistent pack and the dual meets began, the team jelled and took first, second, and third positions in five of seven dual meets. At Benet they captured the third place trophy and took two ribbons at the P.S.L. finals.

Oltman's girls overcome obstacles

Overlooking a broken rib from the Aurora Central game, a hairline fractured hand from Luther North and a sprained ankle from Providence, the girls had a great basketball season. Their new coach was Mrs. Oltman, who had much experience as a basketball player in lowa; she led them to their record of 64 and a third place in the P.S.L. tournament. In spite of all the injuries, the girls had great times together, whether it was having a scrimmage with the junior high or sharing the gym (when it could be shared) with the boys' varsity team. They usually had late practice from 4:30 - 6:00, but their wins made it worthwhile.

Fans dribble in for freshman games

Although the freshman basketball team didn't have a great record, they gained valuable experience under Coach Bosman and his assistant, Mr. Meyer. They also met the tough competition they will be battling against for the next three years. The season started with a tough loss to St. Ignatius after the game had been tied at half time. They competed in two Christmas tournaments but won only one game in each. The real turning point in the season was the game against Illiana when they realized they could be a pressing team. Using their newly discovered 1-31 full court press, they captured fourth place in the Chicago Christian Invitational, behind three Class AA teams.

J-V bounces into second

When three sophomores were pulled up to varsity and the team lost three of the first four games, the season didn't seem very promising. But the team turned things around by winning eight out of the next nine games and taking first place in Riverside-Brookfield's Christmas tournament. Back in the league the team lost a crucial game to Walther, tightening the race for first place, but bounced back the next night to defeat the league leader, Chicago Christian. Losing to Illiana the second time made taking first place almost impossible, but some close wins allowed them to capture second place in the league with a 10-4 record, finishing the season with a 15-6 over all record.

Varsity shoots for two

Varsity b-ball began with practices ranging from after school to after dinner and the annual conditioning wheezers. When game time came around the guys were still being shuffled for a starting line-up, so the team got off to a slow start. They took third in the P.S.L. Tournament and also third in Timothy's Christmas Tournament. About midway through the season the team put it all together and went from last place to second place in the P.S.L. In the I.H.S.A. districts, the Trojans were ousted by Chicago Christian in a game that was decided at the buzzer. Yet for the most part, the players and coach were pleased with the progress made by a team that had no returning varsity starters.

The wrestling teams experienced a varied season. Practices everyday started out the winter sport in October; every Monday was weight check, an item to be skipped by wrestlers with a guilty conscience. With practices on the stage, the four minute matches always seem quite cramped, especially for Dave Yntema who often wound up on the gym floor on the other side of the stage curtain. Mr. Oosterhouse never did learn his lesson; he was beaten by every guy, making his a 10-0 record! As a team they weren't quite as strong as they would have liked; in fact they always had to forfeit the heavier weight classes. For the first time the team was invited to the Midwest Christian High School Holiday Tournament, where they placed third. JV did well with Bob Cappoci and Bob Loerop going undefeated.

Team of singles strength sustained

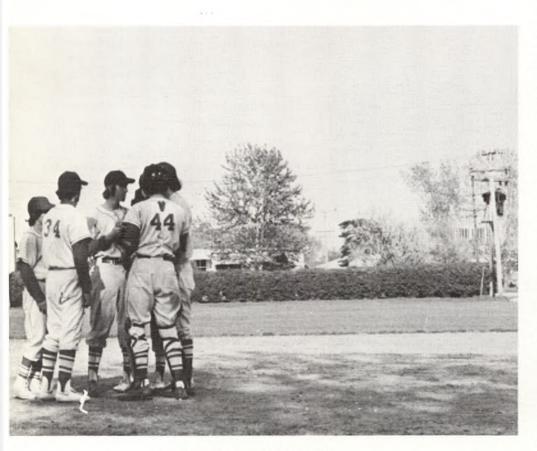

As defending league and P.S.L. tournament champs, the tennis team failed to repeat this past performance. As a team they finished 7-7 in league play. with an overall record 7-9. Although the doubles team failed to produce consistent winning scores, two players made brilliant individual efforts which proved successful. First singles Bob Erickson, a junior, finished with a 14-0 league record, and 19-1 overall. Senior Bill Hoving finished well with 10-4 in league play; 12-7 in overall competition. The beginning of the season had a lot of cancelled matches due to rain but the guys enjoyed the outdoors as the season progressed.

Teams have hit and run season

The J-V's gather for a strategy meeting.

The baseball team this year had its ups and downs but was a better team than its record shows. Their record was 5-II overall and 4-9 in the league, taking fifth place. There was not an abundance of players who went out for the team, so first year coach Van Proyen did not have much to work with. John Smits led the team in batting with a .357 average, made allconference, and was voted the most valuable player on the team. Marc Raines was second on the team with a .333 batting average. Frank Groenewald and Joe Folkerts carried most of the pitching load. The team was inconsistent; but all in all it was a hit and run season.

For the J.V. baseball team, the year started with high hopes. Coach Oosterhouse thought that the teams had enough talent to improve the previous record. As the season progressed his prediction turned out wrong, as the team's fielding was not very good. The hitting improved, but defense is the name of the game and too many errors cost the team close games.

The track team lacked individuals to fill all the events but dominated the ones they filled. The team got off to a slow start in capturing only two places at the P.S.L. Relays. The team showed gradual improvement at the Christian High, Mooseheart and Lisle invitationals.

At the Wooden Shoe Track Meet, Chicago edged out our team despite their best performances to that date. However, two weeks later the team gained vengeance by beating Chicago in the league finals; the Trojans finished in a tie for fifth with only six men. Late in the year the team decided to put together a two-mile relay team for state competition. At the district meet the team of Munk, Haack, DeBoer and Groenewald came from behind to qualify for downstate. They reached the finals and finished tenth.

Girls set running records

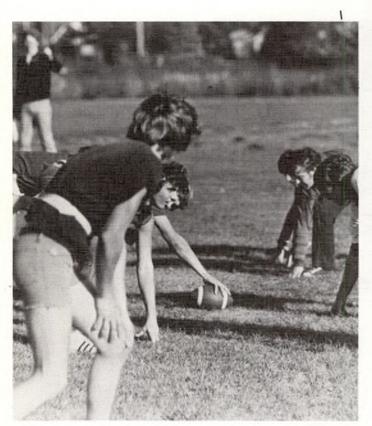

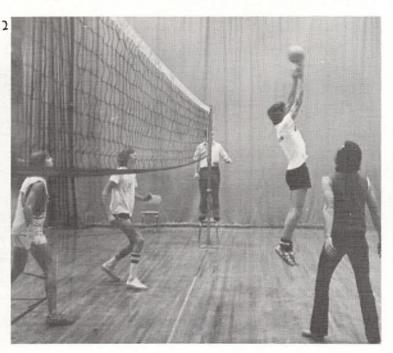

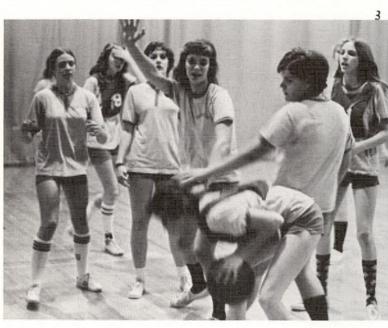

Girls' track consisted of seventeen members, a definite increase over past years. The girls who were back set their goal to get their times down. As a team they didn't win but they had some fine individual talent. At the Moosehart Relays they took two second places, competing against twenty-one teams. Another happening the girls were quite proud of was Betty Munk's breaking the P.S.L. record in the two-mile. Aside from daily practices, the girls felt most unified during bus rides to and from meets. Mr. Senti coached the girls and said it was a high point in his coaching experience.

Student Council plans varied activities

Once again student council started out the year with the all-school party; this included a band, hot dogs, pop and ice cream, and shaving cream pies for the freshmen. Homecoming was held during an afternoon game on a Saturday in December. Wendy Vanderleest was crowned queen, surrounded by her court, which consisted of seniors Jan Boer and Sherry Bollow, juniors Val Bussema and Barb Pleiter, and sophomores Mary Evenhouse and Lyn Zeilstra. The Christmas party was held the afternoon before vacation. Three activities were planned: bowling, ice-skating and tobagganing. Tobagganing was cancelled because there was no snow, skating resulted in a lot of wet pants but no bruises, and bowling brought excitement and frustration. The main event, which a committee worked on all year, was SAC week. When it finally came around everyone seemed to enjoy taking time out during the first week of May, for a different type of learning experience.

'76 SAGA is born

After choosing "The Spirit of '76" theme, the SAGA staff began the ninemonth procedure of getting articles assigned, collected, typed, and proofed, layouts created, pictures taken, developed, chosen, cropped and printed, adds sold and money collected, and captions conceived. The weekly work night was Tuesday, sometimes late evenings were shared with Burger King and County Inn. The staff had a slow start but as the year progressed - and time ran out - things began to jell. They labored right on through exams, and, after final editing, the yearbook was sent off to the printer's and thus a new SAGA was born.

Staff struggles through setbacks

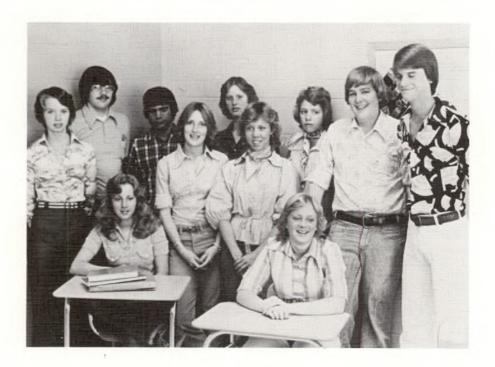

Working on TRUMPET was a timeconsuming and challenging job for the staff. Mrs. Stob and Mrs. VanderVeer, as co-sponsors, provided good literary and technical guide lines. Journalism class did quite a bit to provide a source for writers and articles. But there was always the routine of typing, editing and laying the paper out.

There were a few setbacks: broken typewriters, controversial articles, and a shortage of writers; but the staff pulled through, even if it meant layout night lasting until 2 A.M. Two of the most intriguing sections of the paper were "Letters to the Editors," and "Comments by Rich Buikema." To say the least, they sparked student interest and, along with the sports and features, brought another year of Timothy news to the students, teachers, parents and community.

Band has busy season

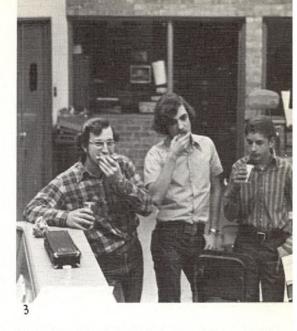

The band consisted of about seventy members. The seemed to start and end the year with hard practice every day fourth hour, working towards the many concerts they gave within the year. In the fall they had a combined concert with the choir. The highlight for the band was undoubtedly the trip to Grandville, Michigan, where they gave a combined concert with Calvin Christian Concert Band. They ended the season with a busy week that included three appearances. The first was a concert of all the Timothy bands, from fifth grade through high school. They then joined four other bands from Christian high schools in the service of dedication of the Back to God Hour Communications Center in Chicago. After having practiced marching as soon as weather permitted, their final appearance of the year was at Elmhurst's Memorial Day Parade.

out hidden talent, subsidizes tour

Although the concert choir decided against a musical this year, there was a variety of activities to make a memorable year. Besides their annual fall and Christmas concerts, Timothy was joined by the Grandville Christian choir for a spring concert. In February a variety night was held; the program included the choir, girls' glee, boys' chorus, soloists, duets, quartets, and an octet singing songs from a wide range of musicals. Some humorous skits and instrumental numbers were also performed. During April and May, choir went to local churches to sing at Sunday services. Having their music down pat, they took off a day in May and traveled to Wisconsin to sing at Waupan and Sheboygan Christian high schools. Traveling by coach bus, paid for by their variety night, the singers stopped in Milwaukee on the way home to eat, bowl and just relax.

Performers light up the stage

"Candles," the play given in the fall, was made up of separate skits portraying Christians as candles. Given light by their candlemaker, just as our Creator gives life, the candles were motivated to light other candles. The theme of the play, "Pass It On," was sung by the whole cast as the finale. The cast of thirty-nine put it all together, providing a unique experience for them and for their audience. Because of the large cast, there was little pressure on any individual; this gave the players a chance to really ham it up, and they made the most of the opportunity! The cast also traveled to Illiana Christian to give a chapel. Mr. Day, the director, received a candle and candle holderas a remembrance of the production.

- The stakes are high in old maid, according to Gary and Bob.
- 2 The sower sows his seeds.
- 3 Instrumentalists add favorable background to the "Candles" performance.
- 4 Man of the hour uses tennis ball power.

We remember "I Remember Mama"

Six weeks of rehearsal and an even longer time of planning by Mr. Day, the director, went into the production of the spring play, "I Remember Mama." Many unique roles made characterizations fun, and the Norwegian accent of some of the characters was a real challenge. The main plot of the play tells of a few years in the life of a family of immigrants and the oldest daughter's struggle to become a writer. The story ends with Katrin sitting in the kitchen reading the play, her latest story, to the family. Her story is filled with the everyday problems of a family, including younger brothers and sisters, and interfering aunts and uncles. Once the performances were over, plans were made for a banquet to honor the actors and production crews.

Talents create new club

Something new at Timothy this year was the Drama Club. At first the number of people interested in joining was small, but as the plays "Candles" and "I Remember Mama" were given, the club began to grow to about 45. To become an official member, eight points had to be earned; this could be done by being in the cast, on a committee, or student director of one of the plays. On May 13 the club held a banquet at the Lilac Lodge. Entertainment was provided by the club officers and the cast of "I Remember Mama." Those who had become full members of the club received pins.

Girls go vaudeville

With G.A.A. planning the games, Girls' Board started the year with a fall picnic for the high school girls. It was highlighted by a rough game of red rover and roasting somemores. Just before Christmas vacation the board sponsored a spaghetti dinner for the girls, followed by the movie "David and Lisa." The annual spring presentation for the girls and women in the community was a vaudeville show. Included in this were short comedy skits, readings, silly songs and some instrumental selections. After the program, cake and various goodies were served.

"I didn't know the gun was loaded" was one of the comical skits presented in the vaudeville show.

- Sue and Cathy perform a scene from "Antigone" for Fine Arts competition.

The Fine Arts Committee had a crew of eighteen. Fund raising activities ranged from square dances to chicken dinners, soup suppers, and the first annual taco day. Most of the money went towards Fine Arts Week when the assemblies ranged from Truck and Co., which performed scenes from Shakespeare, to a swing choir from Wheaton North High School. During that week competition was held in photography, art, writing, acting, and music; participants met with judges to hear their critiques. Timothy again regained the honored Vitez trophy at the festival at Trinity Christian College; most of the students entered there received outstanding ratings. The committee continued to bring culture and fun at the same time to the student body.

Juniors transform gym into big top

On Friday night, April 30, the circus came to Timothy. Led by Ringmaster Oosterhouse, the program sparkled with the hidden talents of members of the junior class and the talents of a professional magician, Jay Marshall. Multi-colored streamers forming the roof, walls lined with side-shows and game booths, a menagerie of stuffed animals, and the smell of hot buttered popcorn gave the gym the atmosphere of a real circus. And what big top would be complete without balloons. Five hundred of them, filled with helium and tied wherever they could be attached, topped off the decorations. A good meal complete with carrousel cake and served by assorted clowns made it a banquet with something everyone could enjoy.

- I Jay Marshal's tricks and puns cause mixed reactions.

Banquet awarded to Sharko's

The annual conglomeration of hunger, formality, surprise, trophies and applause went into the Awards Banquet. After a half hour delay as places were found by latecomers, the waitresses brought out the delicious dinner. Evening wear consisted of long dresses and suits, but there are always a few who refuse to go along with the crowd. One group of girls appeared in men's suits and another in Mickey Mouse T-shirts; but these groups did provide the entertainment. Of course the real purpose of the banquet was to give awards to the year's outstanding students; this was the highpoint of a memorable evening at Sharko's.

Academics

Students search the Scriptures

Bible II used the book Who Says for a guideline as they learned the importance of the Bible as the infallible Word of God; they also studied Paul's Missionary Journeys. Church History was taught by both Rev. Reitsma and Mr. Stob; both stressed that we as Christians, although small, are a significant part of the developing church. Ethics was an overall study of Christian living using the Ten Commandments as a basis; special attention was given to current problems such as abortion and capital punishment. Religions was a study of other religions in contrast to Christianity, which alone has as its hero, a living

Freshman Bible students spent time getting familiar with facts and happenings of Old Testament history.

Language students enjoy variety

Was für eine interessante Deutsche Klasse! First year German students had an Oktoberfest (in April?), sang German songs, and learned lots of vocabulary and grammar. German Ill-IV created some skits and had German conversations (Gespräche), contests, vocabulary and grammar. Advanced classes saw films and studied slang, traditions, and even did some German cooking! Also, they read short stories, poetry, and a short novel.

Beginning Latin students learned basic vocabulary and grammar through the use of cartoons starring Superlegatus and Rufus, cookie quizzes, and scrabble. Second-year students translated the gospel of John, besides learning grammar, they analyzed its patterns. Advanced students met seven periods a week for a semester only, studying and translating the book of Acts.

Students prepare for business world

First year typing and shorthand were offered this year. After struggling through basic forms and keyboard drills first semester, most of the students felt somewhat comfortable using their new skills by the end of the year. Almost all non-business sophomores got in a semester of personal typing.

The experiences in bookkeeping class ranged all the way from learning what it's like to be a frustrated adult filing an income tax return, to keeping the books for a company for two weeks. Seniors in business practice learned to use the dictaphone, worked on speed with adding machines and calculators, completed many typing jobs, and at the end of the year worked on shorthand and typing speed as they prepared for job interviews.

- To make her copy letter perfect, Lisa corrects an error.
- 2 Getting ready for a job interview, Sue checks out her shorthand speed.
- 3 Taking a timed test requires a lot of concentration.

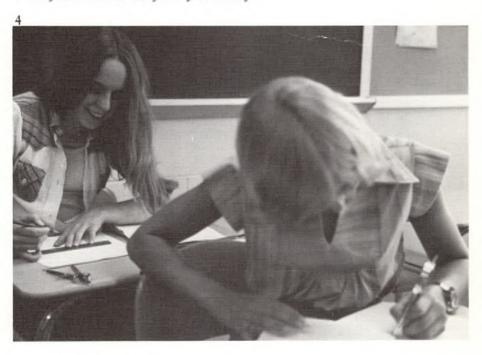

Four years of math keeps many busy

Freshman algebra students got experience in graphing and equation solving and worked with functions and the set of irrational numbers. Math I-II had an emphasis on arithmetic skills and also worked with percentages and those ever-popular proportions. Geometry classes learned, among other things, that you can't tell by looking. They worked with theorems and geometric figures. The minor section had more formulas and computation while the major section had more proofs. Algebra III reviewed first year algebra, then went on to logarithms, analytic geometry, and an introduction to trigonometry. They also did some very interesting projects. Advanced math was a pot pourri of topics such as trigonometry, elementary calculus, and graphing higher order equations. The students experienced the joys (?) of matrices, linear programming and probability.

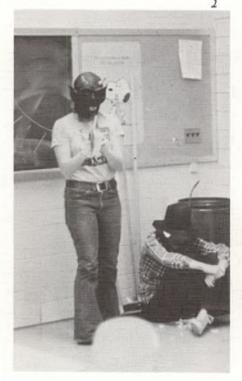

- 1 Trying his hand at using a new tool. Hank attempts to find the lost center of a circle.
- 2 Arm wrestling relaxes their minds as Kurt and friends get ready for advanced math class.
- 3 The photographer gets a warm welcome.
- 4 Cindy doesn't seem to take geometry too seriously.

Term papers written and dramatizations performed

Freshman English was quite varied; students read three novels, some poetry and short stories, and studied grammar. They had opportunities to use their imagination in writing and in improvisations. Sophomores studied American Literature, with Mrs. VanderVeer's classes taking the material chronologically and Mrs. Stob's, thematically. All the classes studied "The Crucible," and all students were required to write a research paper on a career. Juniors were able to choose their favorites (and not-so-favorites) from a variety of nine-week courses, including areas of literature, writing and drama. Seniors who took English lit started with modern writings and worked back to the medieval period; each student was required to write a term paper, analyzing some piece of literature.

experiments

Science courses were offered in these main areas: chemistry, physics, and biology. One chemistry lab tested the reaction of potassium in water; this was considered dangerous enough to hold the experiment outside. Eighth hour chemistry used goldfish in an experiment, putting radioactive material in the water; but they never got true results as the fish died from an overdose. Probing the field of biology, students dissected frogs and fetal pigs. Sophomores had a spring unit on birdwatching. The advanced science class did an in-depth study of photosynthesis of plants; their use of chlorophyll, and its effect on human respiration. They also worked on a project of re-cycling cans, as part of their ecology study. There was only one physics class; after much study on the illuminating topic of astronomy, they took a field trip to the planetarium.

Students made aware of current happenings

There are many courses in the social studies department. Freshmen traveled back in world history with Man's Unfinished Journey. U.S. history classes had new books which brought them up to date in our country's history. Current affairs class read the Sun Times every day to help keep up with the latest issues. In their study of the financial structure of business, the econ class visited a brokerage house, the Chicago Board of Options Exchange and the Mercantile Exchange. In this presidential year, government students played "Simulation," learning the process involved in an election. The psychology class took a trip to Elgin State Hospital where students had an opportunity to interact with the patients. Sociology panels discussed some current issues such as gun control, rehabilitation and euthanasia.

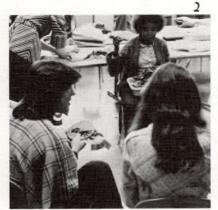

- Russ would rather day dream about the future than concern himself with current affairs.
- 2 World history can get to be an emotional thing for freshmen students.
- 4 "I've heard of sleeping in psych class, but this is ridiculous.

Courses produce creative designers

The mechanical drawing class did a unique thing this year, sending five students to the Christian Industrial Arts Competition at Calvin College. All students in the two mech draw classes competed for five best drawings. This helped produce incentive and was good experience for the students who got to go. Each of the few girls in the class at least learned the proper way to draw a straight line. Architectural design was the advanced course; some beautiful models of homes were designed and built by the students.

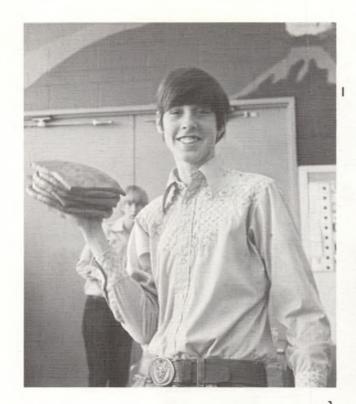

Home Ec I included a semester of cooking which usually resulted in overflowing cup cakes or over heated baked Alaska. Second semester included basic sewing techniques and three projects. Since it was a small class, a lot of individual attention was given by Mrs. Oltman. In Home Ec II students looked into child development and interior decorating; in their sewing unit, the girls were expected to do a specific number of projects per quarter, working at an advanced level.

- I Karen and Sue stitch away to finish their projects.
- 2 Girls form their own sewing circle during sixth hour.
- 3 With a trip to Michigan at stake, the mech draw class works carefully.
- 4 Sewing I takes a day off for classroom discussion of fabrics.

The former freshman chorus existed in the form of girls' glee and boys' chorus. Both groups performed in the choir's Christmas concert and in the variety night in February; girls' glee also sang for the Girls' Board annual tea. This was the year for the music theory class; it was a small group but the students found it worthwhile. The freshmen had a choice of taking music appreciation class or going into either chorus or band.

Art classes were offered for nine weeks or a full year. Art I started with basics, aiming at a proper grasp of proportion through pencil drawing and working with papier-mache. Art II students chose projects and worked independently; projects varied from clay, metal or cement sculpture to water-colors and mobiles. Nine-week courses were given in macrame, painting and ceramics.

P. E. stresses mental and social aspects

The girls P.E. classes had quite a number of different activities beginning with volleyball and ending with tennis. Throughout the colder weather basketball, gymnastics and a body control class took place. The guys had many of the same sports adding the Marine Corps Youth Physical Fitness tests, and softball in the spring. Both Mr. Greenfield and Mrs. Wygmans stressed the interaction of the mental and social aspect of sports with the physical, hoping to bring about a healthy balance in each individual.

Freshmen

We're small. The tall feel small. the small feel smallersmall in appearance, small in ability (so everyone seems to think). Freshmen must learn more that first year than any other year. Some new friendships were formed while more was learned about old friends. We met new teachers and learned how hard their tests were and we also learned how much we could get away with. Freshman year. . . part good, part bad. But we learned to live with itall of it. For we knew that one day we would be those infallible seniors, towering over everyone!

was chosen an outstanding student because of her evident Christian character, her high academic record, and her interest and participation in a wide variety of activities: co-editor of the TRUMPET, choir and octet, Drama Club and its productions, track and intramurals, Girls' Board and GAA Board.

Outstanding students chosen

GREG DYKSTRA and KATHY WOLDMAN were presented with character awards for their Christian character, their positive attitude towards school, and their willingness to work for and with others.
