BEGINNING OF THE YEAR CURRICULUM

Language and Literature

Our initial MYP unit focuses on perspective and how reading historical fiction can help us understand the real world through fictional characters. We will explore this concept with our summer reading book, Fever, 1793 by Laurie Halse Anderson. This is the assigned summer reading book and should be completed BEFORE the first day of school.

Science

We will begin with Experimental Design and will be doing experiments weekly.

Individuals and Societies

We will start by studying our Colonial Heritage. This includes the 13 Colonies and the causes of The American Revolution.

Math

Our first unit is on integer operations. This also includes the rational numbers (positive and negative integers, fractions, and decimals).

Mandarin

We will start with greetings and introductions.

Spanish

We will learn about school-related topics and how to communicate with friends.
