If you can sew a straight line, you can make rag quilt! You can make a charming, super cozy quilt without putting in a ton of time or — wait for it — even really knowing how to quilt? It's shocking, but true. Rag quilts aren't actually made of..... rags. Rather, they get their name from having exposed seams between patchwork squares, which are snipped and frayed to create a "raggedy" look. If you think you can't sew, this incredibly easy rag quilt will prove you wrong. Simple to learn, forgiving and beautiful. You'll be glad you tried! Bring your own machine to class. The Aftermath of the Battle of Gettysburg NEW

Michael Jesberger

Monday 11/7

1 Session 7:00-9:00PM

SAHS A106 $30

"We were not meant to see such things," were the words of a Gettysburg civilian following the days after the battle. A subject that is often times overlooked or totally forgotten when reflecting on the American Civil War.

When the Army of Northern Virginia and the army of the Potomac came into Gettysburg, Pennsylvania in July of 1863, they swept in like a whirlwind. And a thunderous storm followed for 3 days. And that quick, they were gone leaving in their aftermath a massive wake of destruction and carnage that had never been seen before. Have you ever thought about it? If you focus on it, you might just imagine for a moment.... What would it have looked like?

Amazingly enough with all of the accounts that were done, and books that had been written about the battle, there had never been a major study to deal with that aftermath of the battle of Gettysburg. With over 50,000 killed and wounded, and that was just the beginning. Historical reenactor, lecturer and tour guide Michael Jesberger will explore this macabre tale of the American Civil War.

This class will provide firsthand accounts of the river crossing, the details of the nine-mile march to Trenton, the battle and the impact left behind for us to remember today in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.
