CELEBRATING THE CENTENNIAL IN PHOTOS

Meadow Atrium

The exhibit traces the school's 100-year history. Mounted by the Bronxville School Foundation, with special thanks to Claudia Keenan, author of Portrait of a Lighthouse School: Public Education in Bronxville, NY, and Bronxville Village Historian Raymond Geselbracht, the display can also be viewed on the Bronxville School Foundation's website: <https://www.bronxvilleschoolfoundation.org>

CENTENNIAL ORAL HISTORY AND DATABASE

Chris Doyle of Bronco TV and his team interviewed members of the Bronxville School and Village community, gathering recollections for the centennial celebration and creating a resource for future generations. The database of interviews will be available through a Google site. The project was made possible with the support of the Bronxville School Teacher Center and the Bronxville School Foundation and will include images and videos showing the development of the building from its early days to the present. Research for the project relied on Bronco TV, historical records from the Bronxville Public Library's History Room and Portrait of a Lighthouse School: Public Education in Bronxville, New York by Claudia Keenan, published on the occasion of the school's 75th anniversary.
