

INTRODUCING STANDARD RESPONSE PROTOCOL

We want our schools to be safe and welcoming learning environments that nurture students' cognitive, emotional, and physical well-being. We believe the safest schools foster a climate of support, respect, and community. How we respond to incidents is a vital component of school safety as well.

In the 2019-20 school year, we incorporated the Standard Response Protocol into our emergency procedures in line with guidance from the Wis. Dept. of Justice's Office of School Safety and national recommendations on school safety.

It incorporates many of the concepts we already use but offers more clarity and consistency in terminology among schools and first responders across the country.

Each school year, students will receive age-appropriate instruction on what to do in each of these scenarios through lesson plans, slide presentations, class discussions, videos, and more.

Emergency drills help students practice what they learn. These include nine fire drills, two tornado drills, two school safety incident drills (such as Evacuate, Hold, or Secure), and a "school violence event" drill (Lockdown). Schools will communicate with you when these drills take place.

At mmsd.org/safety, you can find more information about school safety, including student training materials, tips for talking to children about a variety of serious issues, and resources for being prepared for emergencies, reporting concerns, monitoring your child's online activity, and more.

We encourage you to use the resources to discuss safety with your children at home too.
