

Think you know about fentanyl? Think again.

Fast Facts

Fentanyl is a very strong synthetic opioid that is tasteless and odorless. It is 50 times stronger than heroin and 100 times stronger than morphine.

Only two salt-sized grains of fentanyl may cause an opioid overdose.

What you need to know

Street drugs can be laced with fentanyl without the user's knowledge. These may include:

- Marijuana
- Vaping e-liquids
- Counterfeit (fake) pills
- Cocaine

Be Aware

Drugs purchased on the street, from a friend, or through social media do not contain an ingredient list. One "dose" of fentanyl can have a fatal amount when another does not. If medication has not been prescribed to you, it runs the risk of being laced.

Spread the Word

Looks are deceiving -- fake pills look real. Only take medication prescribed by a doctor or purchased at a pharmacy. It may only take a small amount of fentanyl to cause an opioid overdose.

To learn more, text KNOW to 30644
or visit PreventItAlexandria.org

