Educators, business groups launch program to show students Stark County's opportunities

Canton Repository

The Stark Education Partnership is teaming with economic development and business groups on a plan to help prepare students for a future in Stark County... A revised strategic plan has the partnership working to "build generations of successful individuals who fulfill their potential and grow roots in Stark County." John Richard, Stark Education Partnership president, said that can be done by developing programs to guide students along a meaningful career path. It would involve matching a student's abilities with their interests and helping them start careers.
