

What is something that you learned as as result of the meeting?	What is something that you are wondering about as as result of the meeting?	Which meeting type do you prefer?	What else would you like us to know?
A lot! I learned about the major sources of funding for SLP schools, and where enrollment is this year vs expectations.	Is there a standard or general guidance for the amount that should be kept in reserves for a school district?	In Person	I really enjoy the student participation and look forward to hearing more of their perspectives.
The assumptions that go into establishing the fiscal budget/plan, including enrollment assumptions—as well as how levies work.	More details about levies and digging deeper into assumptions. I also realize we don't have much input on the expense side, but I am interested in how this plays a part in the overall process.	In Person
Expectations of the council, as well as insight into the driving mission and vision of the district.	Overall curiosity about the revenue generation levers for the district.	In Person
That the expense side of the budget is complete out of our purview. If we are truly just looking at enrollment data. Then we should likely change the scope and title of the group.	Should the meetings start with start of the school year? It seems like we are going to work to get our limited set of recommendations done in the next couple of months. But had we started say at the end of last school year then we could have had more time to get folks up to speed, then maybe we would be better able to advice the school board. Or should the group be 2 year terms so some more experienced folks could take the lead each and bring the others up to speed.	In Person	I think having a hybrid option is good. the meeting should be in person first. But if folks cannot be there then tuning in over the web is good. Maybe assign some work groups. In every committee there are folks that are more eager and willing. A group to dive into the comparison data to other school districts might be helpful. Then having the work group report out might be impactful. I have all ready looked at the budgets of Edina, Hopkins, Minnetonka and ours. The revenue per pupil is much higher in Edina and Hopkins. Some research is definitely warranted to understand this further. As it was implied that we have maxed out all resources at our disposal.
The first meetings are often really great at hearing about each member and what they think the FAC does vs what is actually needed from the community.	Everything we captured regarding data points that would be helpful to react to.	In Person	I really love being part of this committee! I'm also very impressed to see it evolve in its thinking each year. Well done and so excited for the student volunteers! What a wonderful opportunity!
It was a bigger group than I anticipated	When questions come up who is responsible for follow up	In Person
Mostly a review of things learned last year.	What is our salary cost per student normalized for class size compared to our peers?	In Person	I don't have an online vs in person preference.
I gained a clearer grasp on the funding for our schools and how the FAC operates.	Not at this time	In Person	Now that I know how the committee operates, it would probably be hard to break into small groups in online format?
That the basic focus of the group is to look at revenue assumptions.	Where St Louis Park stands related to other districts across a lot of key metrics	In Person	I probably wouldn't stay with the group if it were to go totally online, I find that digital forums aren't great for candid discourse and discussion, are fine for instruction but not ideal this type of work.
I gained more insight into the levy amount being maxed for SLP tax payers and how this plays into the overall budget.	I am left wondering more about the drop in predicted enrollment.	In Person	I love the hybrid option for meetings. I feel that being in person helps build relationships and encourages conversation. I also understand for a variety of reasons some people may prefer online attendance. Thanks for the survey!
It was good to see a large number of committee members for this year. Everyone seemed engaged; and I anticipate thorough work to be done.	I will be following up on the annual audit process (as communicated to Patricia).	In Person	With the current schedule for November and December, though I prefer in-person, I will be traveling for work and will have to do those meetings online. This will be a meeting-by-meeting basis.
