Construction Underway

Valley View's new K-12 School is taking shape as excavators and engineers begin the task of clearing the land for the facilities.

Fanning Howey Architects and Conger Construction started the work on June 19. Fences have now been erected around the site. The new building will be just southwest of the current high school on Farmersville Pike.

The crew hopes to complete the project by the fall of 2024.

"It will be an exciting process as we watch the building take shape," said Superintendent Joe Scholler.

Postal customers in the Valley View School District will be kept up to date throughout the construction by this quarterly mailed newsletter. If you do not receive a newsletter, please stop by the central office at 59 Peffley Street to pick up a copy.
