2. DATA COLLECTION ANALYSIS

2.6 Data Analysis Questions

Analyze the LEA’s data and answer the guiding questions to determine existing trends and patterns that support the identification of demographic and financial needs. Student subgroups with a count of less than 15 are denoted by “TFS” (too few students).

What perception data did you use? [examples: student perceptions about school climate issues (health survey, violence, prejudice, bullying, etc.); student/parent perceptions about the effectiveness of programs or interventions; student understanding of relationship of school to career or has an academic plan]	Staff surveys, student surveys, parent surveys, school counselor's data, professional learning community (PLC) feedback, grade level meetings
What does the perception data tell you? (perception data can describe people’s knowledge, attitudes, beliefs, perceptions, competencies; perception data can also answer the question “What do people think they know, believe, or can do?”)	Park Creek's school climate rating has consistently been in the 90s. On the most recent Student Gallup poll results for our school, students in grade 5 indicated an engagement index of 57%. However results indicate fewer students feeling hopeful with a decrease to 26%. Suggestions for changes to be made: reduce class size, variety in methods to assess student achievement, increase level of parental support, continue to raise quality of instruction and level of student achievement, and address trauma-impacted students' needs through a comprehensive, school-wide approach. The top challenges of the school are: overcoming the effects of poverty and trauma on student growth and achievement, developing and nurturing family support, enhancing and sustaining robust communications and community support, retaining quality teachers, improving student mastery of standards and raising the level of student achievement, improving professional support infrastructures for teachers, consistently engaging students in work with high levels of cognitive demand, improving student social and emotional learning competencies, addressing the needs of diverse learners, continuing to provide and update digital content to supplement and enhance classroom instruction and a unified approach to phonics instruction.
What process data did you use? (examples: student participation in school activities, sports, clubs, arts; student participation in special programs such as peer mediation, counseling, skills conferences; parent/student participation in events such as college information meetings and parent workshops)	Canvas courses for ELA, Math, Science and Social Studies, administrative walkthroughs, TKES process, Grade-level meeting notes, MTSS process, progress monitoring efforts, educator experience and continuity, budget allocation process, meeting sign-in sheets, leadership team feedback, CNA process with staff and community

What does the process data tell you? (process data describes the way programs are conducted; provides evidence of participant involvement in programs; answers the question “What did you do for whom?”)	The data tells us that Instructional Coaching and Canvas are providing research-based, rigorous instructional resources and professional learning for teachers. . Teachers are sharing learning intentions with students in clear, consistent ways while using specific academic vocabulary from content standards. Walkthroughs ensure a continuing focus on district and school initiatives while simplifying expectations for staff and students. We will continue to use district and school-based data resources to build our capacity for developing high-impact practices and teacher efficacy.

What achievement data did you use?	GA Milestones, MAP, GKIDS, Grade-level common assessments, district common assessments, formative assessments, benchmark data for math and literacy, ACCESS, Write Score, math fact fluency, running records, guided reading data, high frequency words, GLOSS data
--	--

What does your achievement data tell you?	Even though the school's CCRPI rating has consistently risen for the past several years, there are still significant opportunities for improvement in all areas. Student seem to have difficulty with the successful transfer of knowledge from demonstrated classroom competency to standardized assessments. An opportunity for significant growth exists in goal setting and celebrations of success with students to build resiliency and perseverance. Staff needs to develop capacity in trauma-skilled work to help students continue their progress. Finally, staff needs to have a common approach to phonics instruction - with special emphasis on early learners.
---	--

What demographic data did you use?	Student demographics/subgroups, program enrollment, discipline, and attendance
--	---

What does the demographic data tell you?	The number of English Learners and special needs students continue to increase and have done so over the past several years. Additionally, our total school population is declining. However, it appears that our mobility rate and new to country numbers may be leveling off.

3. NEEDS IDENTIFICATION AND ROOT CAUSE ANALYSIS

3.1 Strengths and Challenges Based on Trends and Patterns

Read the trends and patterns summaries from each section of the data analysis process. Use the information in these summaries to complete 3.2 and 3.3. Using the summaries in 3.1 and other local data, describe the strengths and challenges or answer the guiding questions for each program. Include strengths and challenges related to: a) general program implementation, and b) students and adults involved in or affected by the program. Focus on strengths and challenges that will assist in the identification of needs during 3.2. Watch the Identifying Need webinar for additional information and guidance.

Strengths and Challenges Based on Trends and Patterns

Coherent Instructional: Summarize the coherent instructional system trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	School strengths include a focus on quality instruction that engages students, focus on clarity for learning expectations, focus on data analysis at the student, grade, and school levels, flexibility in instructional practices based on data analysis, focus on new learning around the effects of trauma on students and what can be done to promote resiliency. Top challenges are how to overcome the effects of poverty (including hunger) and trauma on student learning, developing and enhancing family engagement and support, using a common approach for phonics instruction, consistency in engaging students in work with high cognitive demand, increasing the effectiveness and efficiency of the MTSS process, and continual improvement and consistency of effective classroom practices.
Effective Leadership: Summarize the effective leadership trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	Park Creek staff are currently working toward developing their skills in dealing with trauma among students. This is our second year of learning for all of us, so the opportunity to carry the work beyond our school is of interest to many. This opportunity is indicative of the leadership culture of the school which seeks to plug people into interest-based opportunities that coincide with identified school need. Additionally, leadership opportunities exist in the school leadership team, school council, and PLCs. Outside the district, staff may access the district's emerging leaders work, district curriculum teams, and RESA classes. All of this work helps identify opportunities for improvement.
Professional Capacity: Summarize the professional capacity trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	Existing structures such as coaching and distributive leadership work in conjunction with district and state curriculum shifts to determine the course for professional learning in our school. Continuing work with data analysis and turning analysis to action is needed. The school's work toward trauma-skilled schools certification and ending student hunger are school-wide efforts that enhance culture and academic preparedness.

Strengths and Challenges Based on Trends and Patterns

Family and Community Engagement: Summarize the family and community engagement trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	The majority population of Park Creek is heavily Hispanic and from poverty backgrounds. We have worked diligently to overcome the potential language barrier with families and have met with some success. However, because many parents do shift work, it is sometimes difficult for them to take time to participate in school activities. Dedicated academic nights and fun nights have had success when enough advance notice is given. Additionally, the staff's use of digital tools has created increased flexibility for meeting with parents for conferences. All interactions with students and families help determine student, teacher, and leader needs.
Supportive Learning Environment: Summarize the supportive learning environment trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	Park Creek uses a school-wide positive behavior program called ROAR. Additionally, we have identified student experiences with trauma as a significant detriment to student learning. Finally, our high poverty level leads to students potentially experiencing hunger. Data collection and analysis from these key areas will provide ongoing insight into student, teacher, and leader needs.
Demographic and Financial: Summarize the demographic and financial trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	Trends and patterns observed by the team are a declining student enrollment, increased percentage of EL and ESS learners, and continuing cuts in state funding. Recent CARES funding has helped to temporarily off-set some of the needs created by recession-era cuts. Additionally, the team notes efforts by our BOE to decrease student/teacher ratios.
Student Achievement: Summarize the student achievement trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	CCRPI scores have shown steady improvement over the past several years. Map and Milestones results indicate a high level of teacher impact on student learning with opportunities for continued growth. ACCESS scores for our EL population have continued to be strong.

IDEA – Special Education, Economically Disadvantaged Children, and English Learners.

Using the summaries in 3.1 and other local data, describe the strengths and challenges or answer the guiding questions for each program. Include strengths and challenges related to: a) general program implementation, and b) students and adults involved in or affected by the program. Focus on strengths and challenges that will assist in the identification of needs during 3.3. Watch the Identifying Need webinar for additional information and guidance.

Strengths	We provide a full continuum of services for students. Each segment is taught by an in-field certified special education or EL teacher. Paras provide classroom support for small-group focus. Students experience necessary therapies and educational services to support increased developmental skills.
Challenges	The number of students relative to the overall population continues to increase. Challenges include providing accessible grade-level experiences and the number of students who have experience with trauma.
