- Classes begin on January 17, 2023 and run through May 13, 2023
- There are no prerequisites and all courses are Guaranteed Transfer (GT)
- Tuition cost is the community college rate
- There may be some textbook costs
- Students will receive direct support when transitioning to college

Spring 2023 Courses (all courses listed are 3 credits):

• ANT 1310 - Introduction to Cultural Anthropology

This course is an exploration of the diversity that defines the human experience. Students learn about the field of anthropology and its approach to examining other cultures with a focus on holism and cultural relativism.

• CHS 1000 - Introduction to Chicana/o Studies

This course covers the major historical moments beginning with an overview of Pre-Columbian civilizations in the Americas and Medieval Spain, which have led to the contemporary social location of the Mexican-origin population within the United States.

• SOC 1010 - People, Power, and Progress (Introduction to Sociology)

This course is an introduction to the discipline of sociology. It analyzes power, progress, and social change to better understand the forces that shape people's lives, interests, and personalities.

• SWK 1050 - How to Change the World

Operating from human rights and social justice frameworks, this course is an introduction to how to address some of our most pressing social problems. A range of topics will be covered such as environmental and food justice, healthcare, children's rights, racial justice, immigration, gender, LGBTQ+ rights, criminal justice, poverty, and income inequality.
