Cost: $400/Semester

Prerequisite: None

World History and Geography focuses on disciplinary skills of comprehension, analysis and argumentation using a framework for the intensified eight-week curriculum in which historical and geographic patterns, themes and concepts are explored while developing disciplinary literacy skills. The same assessment expectations will be met during the summer as during the regular year. Assessments focus on comprehension, analysis (reading text and interpreting data) and argumentation (verbal and written) skills reflected in course standards. Significant nightly reading and writing assignments are required. Students will need to utilize and develop reading and writing skills on a daily basis. Students will find ample reason to appreciate both the diversity of the human past and the commonalities in each stage of history. Basic literacy skills will be refined into history and geography-specific skill sets during this course. Social Emotional Learning skills in cooperative group work, debate and class discussions will also be taught. Similar to the regular-year option, completion of both Semesters is a prerequisite for future social studies courses and will fulfill a graduation requirement.
