PERSONAL ESSAY - (Note: Please do not include specific names of people in your essay)

Type and include a well-organized, multiple paragraph paper that explains the most important real-world skills that you have learned that will best benefit you in the future workplace. Include detailed examples of how you feel these skills will benefit you. These skills could have been learned from school, life, or past jobs you have had.

Include a functional and short paragraph at the end of your essay that briefly describes where you plan to attend school and what you plan to study. If you are undecided, that's ok. Just let us know a general path of interest that you are leaning towards and why.

General Essay Directions: Title can be generic, but the entire Personal Essay (including functionally short paragraph) should contain no more than 1.5 pages of writing, typed, single spaced, 12 point font, calibri font.

Paper will be scored on:

- How well did the essay stick to the topic and answer the question?
- Did the essay have quality, detailed examples that showed authentic reflection?
- How was the general grammar and spelling? How well were the directions followed?
- Subjective score for overall effort
